ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

Many people have contributed to the collection of information and photographs contained in this book, and to all of you my sincerest appreciation. Special thanks go to Mildred Bishop, Damaris Bradford, Dorothy Harris, Averil Fisher, Minnie Marston, Louise Myer, Olive Sliger, and Martha Smith, all of whom provided much of the background information, photographs, and current addresses of relatives. Some of the papers found among the Whitcomb-Taylor Reunion records included the Barnett family, compiled by Meda Strawn, and the Galbreath family, compiled by Estella Harbaugh about twenty years ago. I am grateful to all those who helped make the task of tracing ancestors and relatives somewhat easier and hope all will benefit by having a greater appreciation of genealogy.

PREFACE

"Those who do not look upon themselves as a link connecting the past with the future do not perform their duty to the world." -- Webster

Believing that a genealogy is never really finished, there comes a time when the compiler must decide to stop and get the manuscript ready for the printer. Also believing that a work of this kind cannot be absolutely accurate in every detail--memories grow dim, vital statistics and typing are not always accurate--I apologize for any errors and/or omissions and give my assurance that I tried to make this work as accurate and correct as time and energy would allow. Much of the missing information is that descendants either could not be traced or did not respond to my inquiry.

The John Whitcomb in the title is John[6] recorded on page 8; the interrelated branches are those descendants of the daughters of John[6] and Asa[7]; namely, Barnetts, Galbreaths, Pattersons, and Taylors. Many of these relatives lived in Central Indiana and Illinois and attended the annual Whitcomb-Taylor Reunion, maintaining close family ties.

Numbering System. A superior figure after a name indicates number of the generation from the first ancestor in America. Numbers in front of the name indicate sequence and are assigned by generation, laterally; i.e., all of one generation is numbered then the next generation, rather than vertically by family. Children who did not attain adulthood were not assigned numbers. Where numbers are missing, it is an indication that no information for that adult was available. If numbers are out of sequence, it indicates that some information was received after the final typing of the book had begun.

Abbreviations. The following abbreviations have been used:

b. - born	ca. - circa--around, about	ch. - children
bur. - buried	d. - died	m. married
	dau. - daughter

INTRODUCTION

Whitcomb Origin

The Whitcomb family name was originally spelled Whetecombe, which signifies "white valley." Combe is a valley, a dale, a word used in portions of southwestern England and Wales and in parts of Ireland. Whete means "white." Since our ancestors lived in County Somerset and County Dorset, they took their name, as was the custom, from the locality where they lived. This area contained high cliffs of chalk and white valleys in the southwestern part of England. Eventually the first syllable changed from Whete to White to Whit, and later the "e" on combe was dropped, giving us the present spelling of Whitcomb.

Many Whitcombs lived in Dorchester and the seaport Weymouth, from which port the second shipload of emigrants set sail bound for Massachusetts. Others lived in Sherborne, the seat of a bishopric from the 8th to the 11th Century, and a Whetcombe was its sometime resident prelate. Still later there is evidence that Whetcombes lived in the counties of Salop, Essex, and London. In the city of London is a street called Whitcomb and on the outskirts, a parish by the same name.

Coat of Arms

The Whitcombe Coat of Arms is described in Burke's General Armory as follows: Paly of six, or and sable three eagles displayed counterchanged.

Crest--Out of a ducal coronet argent a demi-eagle per pale sable and argent wings counterchanged.

Motto--"Aquila non captat muscas." (The eagle doth not catch flies.)

"A grant of land and a charter to the Governor and Company of Massachusetts Bay in New England was issued by the Council of England on March 19, 1627 to Sir Henry Roswell, Sir John Young, Thomas Southcart, John Humphreys, John Endicott, and Symon Whetcomb, their heirs and assigns and associates for ever.

"John Winthrop, 41 years of age, a lawyer and landed proprietor for Groton in Suffolk was elected Governor.

"No fewer than 17 ships arrived during 1630 with sixteen or seventeen hundred immigrants, mostly from the western England counties of Devonshire, Dorsetshire and Somersetshire."[1]

Though some believe that Simon (Symon) was the father of Immigrant John, a comparison of dates of birth shows that Simon was not old enough to have been John's father. He could possibly have been an uncle, but even this is not certain.

Strong evidence indicates that Immigrant John was the second son of John and Anne (Harper) Whitcomb of London. John had an older brother Thomas, who would have inherited his father's wealth under the law of primogeniture in England. Therefore, with only a second son's prospects, it seems likely that when offered a "share in Virginia" he accepted it. ('Virginia' in 1620 was synonymous with 'America'.)[2]

John, our progenitor, was given a share in the Massachusetts colony and came with his wife, Frances Coggins, to the New World ca. 1630-34. He became a church member in 1635 at Dorchester, Mass., and his youngest son Josiah was born there in 1638. In 1640 he relocated in Scituate, where he owned land. He gave half his land to his son Robert in 1654 and moved to Lancaster. John and John, Jr., have been named as among the founders of the town of Lancaster.[3]

* This book is concerned with only those descendants of Robert, indicated by ++, leading to John,[6] 1761-1822, and referred to as the ROBERT LINE.

ROBERT WHITCOMB remained in Scituate after his father moved to Lancaster. He was married by a Quaker preacher to Mary Cudworth, daughter of General James Cudworth. This marriage was pronounced unlawful, according to the Plymouth Colony Records, Vol. III, because of "disorderly coming together without consent of parents and lawfull marriage. . ." The Massachusetts Colony, having been founded by Puritans, did not recognize nor tolerate the doctrines of the Quakers. Robert's brother-in-law, Rhodolphus Ellmes, and General Cudworth were Quaker sympathizers and allowed Quaker meetings in their homes. At that time Robert was courting Mary, General Cudworth's daughter, and the young couple decided that their marriage should be consummated in the manner of the Quakers. Henry Hobson of Rhode Island was invited to guide the young couple in the observance of the true form. At the ceremony, no clergyman or civil clerk was present. The contracting parties stood up in the presence of the witnesses, and mutually promised to live faithfully together as man and wife. In the eyes of the colonial government such irregular conduct must be punished, even though the bride's father was a prominent citizen of the Colony. Robert and Mary were brought before the tribunal and found guilty of "disorderly coming together" and were sentenced to pay a fine of ten pounds and imprisoned. However, a few days in the rude building on Sumner Street in Plymouth, which served as a jail, was enough to convince them to "bee orderly married" by a Puritan minister, which they were on March 9, 1660. They were released from jail and the fine was later reduced in half because of their good behavior.

++ 13. JAMES WHITCOMB,[3] (Robert,[2] John[1]), b. 1668, Scituate, Mass., the third child of ROBERT and MARY (CUDWORTH) WHITCOMB; m. on November 22, 1694, to MARY PARKER. He moved from Scituate to Rochester, Mass., where he died on June 26, 1728.

30. Content,[5] b. October 28, 1740; m. on November 27, 1767, to Solomon Bush of Ware.

NATHANIEL WHITCOMB moved from Rochester to Hardwick, Massachusetts, in about 1742 after Rosilla died on March 8, 1737, leaving seven children. He married Phoebe Blackman on July 27, 1738. Nathaniel was a prominent citizen serving as a selectman and as an assessor in Hardwick. He died on March 18, 1771 or '72.

ASA and JOANNA (RAYMOND) WHITCOMB lived in Hardwick, Massachusetts, until 1774. Prior to their marriage on February 18, 1759, Asa had enlisted and served in the French-Indian War, "being a member of the company commanded by Capt. Paul Mandell, which took part in the Crown Point Expedition from September 20 to December 5, 1756."[1] He also was with Abercrombie's Army when it was defeated at Ticonderoga on July 8, 1758. In 1774 Asa sold his farm at Hardwick and moved to Woodstock for a short time, then on to Barnard, Vermont, his family being the second one there. He served as an agent of the proprietors for the sale of land and induced a large number of his relatives and neighbors from Hardwick, Mass., to move to Barnard; in fact so many that when the town of Barnard was organized, all the officers were Hardwick men except one. Asa served as a selectman and the first Justice of the Peace, 1778, and a Representative in 1779. He lived for a time in Stockbridge and was chosen a Representative in 1797, but trouble with the Indians who were seeking revenge for the act of another Whitcomb and mistakenly took Asa for that man caused him to stay in Barnard.

After the Revolutionary War, Asa Whitcomb made a journey alone to Ohio, traveling as far as he could with safety from the hostile Indians. In 1806 when his sons, John and Anthony, moved to Ohio, he went with them, and then proceeded alone to St. Louis and back to Ohio. He returned to Barnard, where he died in 1812.

THE MINUTE MEN

In early Colonial times, historians tell us, to protect the colonies from Indians, the men would hastily gather where needed to defend their villages and families. However, the Minute Men who fought in the Revolutionary War were not loosely organized farmers who rushed from the fields with gun in hand to fight the enemy. According to Major John R. Galvin in his book, The Minute Men, they were "units drawn from the regular militia, specially trained, specially equipped, and required to assemble very rapidly and to be prepared at all times to march immediately into combat. Officers at even the lowest levels were allowed to exercise extraordinary authority, being permitted to assemble and march their men in time of danger without any orders from a higher command.

The concept of the minute men began as early as 1645 to protect the colonists from warring Indians, as well as the French. By the time that independence from England was declared these "elite" units were well established and the name Minute Men evolved.

The men were also permitted to elect their officers, making it possible for the Provincials to elect men whose sympathies were with the colonists. Therefore, when the various towns and cities in the provinces voted to raise their own militia, the men were already trained and had their own leaders.

In describing the British march on Concord, Major Galvin states that

> "To the west, in Worchester County, there was a military organization more powerful than that of any other county in the province, including Middlesex County--three minute men regiments under Colonels Jonathan Warner, John Whitcomb, and Ephriam Doolittle; three militia regiments under Colonels Artemus Ward, Nathaniel Learned, and Jonathan Ward; and two mixed regiments of minute men and militia commanded by Colonels Asa Whitcomb and Nathaniel Sparhawk. These units were for the most part well trained, ready, and waiting."[1]

John and Asa Whitcomb mentioned above were brothers, descendants of Jonathan, third son of John[1] and therefore are of the "Jonathan Line." Both men took part in the French-Indian War, eventually attained the rank of General, and were regimental commanders of several companies of militia enlisted from the towns in Worcester County, Massachusetts.

48. Joanna,[7]]

JOHN and LYDIA (PARMENTER) WHITCOMB lived in Rochester, Vermont, then in Stockbridge, moving to Hamilton County, near Cincinnati, in 1806. In Stockbridge John was one of the first selectmen of the town. He was a private in the Revolutionary War serving under three different commands, his term of service totaling about nine and one-half months.[1] In 1792 he was elected first representative. In 1793 he was a member of the Vermont Constitutional Convention. In 1806, with his brother Anthony, he moved his family to Ohio, settling in Hamilton County on a farm. Since the new U.S. Government gave many Revoluntionary veterans land grants in addition to, or in lieu of, money, it is possible that he acquired the land in this manner.

John may also have lived for a time in Ross County as he died in 1822 in Chillicothe. His son Simon also lived there before coming to Clinton, Indiana. John is buried in Pleasant Ridge Cemetery, Hamilton County, Ohio.[2] After his death his wife Lydia must have come to Lafayette, Indiana, where her son Asa and her daughter Lydia lived. Daughter Lydia had married James G. Taylor (listed under #47) and lived south of Lafayette. Lydia (Parmenter) Whitcomb died in 1841 and is buried in Hickory Grove Cemetery.[1] However, the cemetery, which is in a state of disrepair, is now called Taylor Cemetery because the small community is Taylor's Station and most of the people buried in the cemetery were Taylors. There is no marker, tombstone, or record of Lydia Whitcomb's burial.

57. Alice Marvine,[8] b. March 14, 1850, Clinton Co., near Michigantown.

ASA and HANNAH (SMITH) WHITCOMB lived most of their lives in Michigan Township, Clinton County, Indiana. The date they left Ohio and came to Indiana is not known, but it was some time between 1820 and 1830. The 1820 Federal Census Index lists only one Whitcomb in Indiana, Joseph, in New Albany, Floyd County. The 1830 Federal Census lists Asa Whitcomb, his wife, and two children under the age of five years living in Fairfield Township, Tippecanoe County, and the 1840 Census, in Sheffield Township. It is believed that the family lived in Brown County for a time before coming to Lafayette. In 1850 the Census lists the family in Michigan Township, Clinton County.

Asa, like the majority of the pioneers who settled the territory west of the Appalachians, was a farmer. Family legend has it that he had been known to distill liquor; and one time his cows fed on some of the fermented mash and were found staggering around the barnlot as a result!

In 1849 Asa and Hanna Whitcomb purchased in her name land from the Wabash and Erie Canal, which is described as "the Northeast quarter of the Northwest quarter of Section number One in Township number Twenty-One north of Range number One East containing Forty Acres and Twenty-Four hundredths of an acre." (See p. 12.) This parcel of land is now the home of a great, great grandson, Tom L. Whitcomb, and family and is located on Road 100 North, about one and one-half miles east of State Road 29. Asa and Hannah also owned other farm land as mentioned in his last Will and Testament (p. 13); in 1852 Asa inherited $1200 from his brother James. (See page 19, item 2.)

Photographs of Asa and Hannah Whitcomb (below) were taken before 1875, probably between 1870-75.

The Board of Trustees of the Wabash and Erie Canal,

TO ALL TO WHOM THESE PRESENTS SHALL COME---GREETING:

Whereas, Hannah Whitcomb

has filed in the office of the Board of Trustees of the Wabash and Erie Canal a final Certificate of the Clerk of the Land Office at Logansport, whereby it appears that full Payment has been made for the North East quarter of the North West quarter of Section number One in Township number Twenty one north, of Range number One East containing Forty acres and Twenty four hundredths of an acre,

West of Tippecanoe; Which Tract was purchased by Hannah Whitcomb at the Office at Delphi as appears by Original Certificate No. 1436:

Now Know Ye, That the Board of Trustees aforesaid, in consideration of the premises, and in conformity with the provisions of "An Act to provide for the Funded Debt of the State of Indiana and for the completion of the Wabash and Erie Canal to Evansville." approved January 19, 1846, and an act supplementary thereto approved January 27, 1847, have given, granted, bargained, and sold, and by these presents do give, grant, bargain, and sell unto the said Hannah Whitcomb and to her heirs, the said tract above described: TO HAVE AND TO HOLD THE SAME, together with all the rights, privileges, immunities, and appurtenances of whatsoever nature thereunto belonging unto the said Hannah Whitcomb and to her heirs and assigns forever.

In Testimony Whereof, The Board of Trustees of the Wabash and Erie Canal have caused their seal to be hereto affixed. Given under the hands of the Trustees at Terre Haute, the fourth day of July in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and forty nine.

LAST WILL AND TESTAMENT OF ASA WHITCOMB

State of Indiana]
] ss.
Clinton County]

In the name of the Benevolent Father of All, I, Asa Whitcomb of Clinton County in the State of Indiana being old and in poor health, but of sound mind and disposing memory considering the uncertainty of life and the certainty of death make and publish this my last Will and Testament.

Item 1. I direct that my body be decently interred.

Item 2. I direct that my beloved wife Hannah take possession of all my personal Estate every kind and nature without administration, and that she sell with as little delay as possible enough of said property to pay all my just debts and funeral expenses of last sickness on such terms as she may think best, but if it becomes necessary that administration of my Estate be granted, I hereby appoint my beloved wife Hannah Executrix of this my last Will and Testament.

Item 3. I further direct that my beloved wife Hannah take absolutely all the rest of my personal Estate for her support, and for to assist her in raising and educating my beloved daughter Alice Marvine Whitecomb (sic) who is now eleven years old.

Item 4. I further give and bequeath to my beloved wife Hannah all my Real Estate, I now own as follows towit: my interest in fee simple in the East half of the South West quarter of section Thirty-six in Township Twenty-Two in Range One East containing eighty acres more or less, also the East half of the West half of the South West quarter of section Thirty-six in Township Twenty-Two in Range One East, containing about forty acres more or less, of said Real Estate being in Clinton County, Indiana, to have and to hold the same during her natural life, and at her death to be divided equally between the following heirs of my body towit: Elizabeth Barnett, Lydia Ann Galbreath, Rebecca Jane Lowden, Sarah Eleanor Armstrong, Mary B. Layton, and Alice Marvine Whitecomb, and at the death of my beloved wife Hannah, I give the aforesaid Real Estate to the heirs before named, I having in my lifetime deeded to John and to James Whitcomb each a piece of land in full of their shares of my Estate both Real and Personal.

I do hereby revoke all former Wills by me made.

In testimony hereof I have hereunto set my hand and Seal this 27th day of October 1862.

(Signed) Asa his x mark Whitcomb

Signed and acknowledged by the said Asa Whitcomb as his last Will and Testament in our presence and signed by us in his presence.

Be It Remembered, That on the 15th day of December, 1875, William Lowden one of the subscribing witnesses to the within and foregoing last Will and Testament of Asa Whitcomb late of said county, deceased, who died on the 23rd day of November 1875 personally appeared before Samuel P. Fisher, Clerk of the Circuit Court of Clinton County in the State of Indiana and being duly sworn by the Clerk of said Court upon his oath declared and testified as follows that is to say: That on the 24th day of October 1862 he saw the said Asa Whitcomb sign his name to said instrument in writing, as and for his last Will and Testament and that this deponent at the same time heard the said Asa Whitcomb declare the said instrument in writing, was at the same time, at the request of the said Asa Whitcomb and with his consent, attested and subscribed by the said William Lowden and John W. Warner in the presence of said Testator and in the presence of each other as subscribing witnesses thereto, and that the said Asa Whitcomb was at the time of the signing and subscribing of the said instrument in writing, as aforesaid, of full age, that is more than twenty-one years of age and sound and disposing mind and memory, and not under any coercion or restraint as the said deponent verily believes; and further deponent says not.

(Signed) William Lowden

Note: Asa Whitcomb's Will is signed with "x his mark" as is Hannah's on the deed to property transferred to their son John (see p.37), indicating that they could neither one write.

The misspelling of Alice Marvene Whitecomb two times in the text of the Will as copies from the Court House records was no doubt a clerk's error.

42. JAMES WHITCOMB,[7] (John,[6] Asa,[5] Nathaniel,[4] James,[3] Robert,[2] John[1]), b. December 1, 1795, Rochester, Vermont, the fourth child of JOHN and LYDIA (PARMENTER) WHITCOMB; d. October 4, 1852; m. March 24, 1846 to MARTHA ANN (RENICK) HURST, dau. of WILLIAM and MARGARET RENICK [also spelled Renwick] of Pickaway County, Ohio.

Children: WHITCOMB

58. Martha Ann Renick,[8] b. July 1, 1847, Indianapolis, Indiana.

JAMES WHITCOMB, one of ten children of a farm family in Ohio, was a self-made man. "He was recognized as the most intelligent and well read boy in the settlement," according to an article by Mary Waldon published on May 10, 1964, in the Indianapolis Sunday Star. Martha Ann Renick was the daughter of a prosperous family and often visited near Cincinnati where James lived. He admired her greatly, but being a poor boy determined to make something of himself, he had little time for romance. He entered Transylvania University, Lexington, Kentucky, and managed to put himself through both college and law school. In the meantime Martha Ann married another suitor, and James began the practice of law at Bloomington, Indiana, in January 1824, having been admitted to the bar in March, 1822. In 1841 he established a law office at Terre Haute, where he soon developed a large and lucrative practice.

In 1826 Governor James B. Ray appointed James Whitcomb prosecuting attorney for the Fifth Judicial Court, and he served in this capacity until 1830, when he was elected State Senator. In 1836, President Jackson appointed him Commissioner of the General Land Office and the next year he was re-appointed by Van Buren. The land grants being mainly in French and Spanish, he studied both languages until he was able to read them fluently. In 1843 he was elected the eighth Governor of Indiana by a majority of 2,013 votes over the incumbent -- the first Democrat to defeat a Whig for that office. When James Whitcomb took office as Governor, the state of Indiana was deeply in debt from the building of roads, railroads, and especially canals, the canal system becoming a failure. When he left office, the debt had been greatly reduced and the state's credit restored.

During the Mexican War Governor Whitcomb helped finance the raising of troops by loans from branches of the State Bank and personally superintended recruiting in Indianapolis. His monument standing on the southwest portion of Monument Circle, Indianapolis, attests to this fact.

> "Whitcomb vigorously promoted popular education and development of benevolent institutions. The office of superintendent of common schools was created in 1843; a school for the deaf was developed by the state in 1844; a state hospital for the insane was provided for in 1845 and received patients in 1848; and in 1847 the Indiana Institute for the Education of the Blind was created."[1]

By the time James took office the second term, he was 51 years old and probably the best-known bachelor in Indiana. He had a weakness for fine clothing, being perfectly groomed for every occasion, and his manners were impeccable. His long black hair was worn in ringlets to his shoulders, emphasizing his dark complexion and expressive features. He had never forgotten his Ohio sweetheart; and when Martha Ann Renick Hurst's marriage ended, James began courting her anew. They were married in 1846, the first year of his second term as Governor.

Governor James Whitcomb was an inveterate user of snuff and also smoked cigars; and because of his extremely thrifty nature, he would insert a pin or toothpick into the stumps of the cigars in order to smoke them closer to the end without burning his fingers. He insisted that matches should be saved and not used to light fires and lamps when twisted papers could serve just as well. "Time must be saved, too," he often told his wife.[2] He was an accomplished violinist and an avid reader, often reading a book while taking a leisurely stroll with Martha Ann.

James and Martha's daughter was born on July 1, 1847, and Martha died 16 days later from a sudden, severe illness, the first Governor's wife to die while her husband was in office. The Governor took the baby girl to his wife's sister, Margaret Seymour, saying, "Martha sent it to you." He was never well after this tragic end to his brief marriage. He resigned as Governor before the close of his term to become United States Senator from Indiana. He died on October 4, 1852, in New York City, following a prolonged illness and surgery for "gravel disease." He is buried at Crown Hill Cemetery, Indianapolis.

Governor James Whitcomb was a Freemason, being the first man knighted in Indiana. Meetings were often held in him home and the Raper Commandery of the Masonic Lodge was organized there. He was an active member of the Methodist Church and frequently led public prayer. At the time of his death he was Vice-President of the American Bible Society.

In his Will, Governor Whitcomb left the bulk of his extensive library to Asbury University, chartered by the Legislature under the patronage of the Methodist Episcopal Church. The University opened at Greencastle on June 5, 1827, with six students. It later became DePauw University. Among the present generations of Whitcomb descendants there is a general impression that Governor Whitcomb endowed a scholarship to be used by future generations. However, in answer to an inquiry David E. Horn, Archivist of De Pauw University states in a letter dated September 1, 1977, as follows:

> "We can find no record at all of a scholarship given to DePauw University by Governor James Whitcomb. There is no mention of it at the time in the University catalogs, in the student publications, or in the minutes of the meetings of the Board of Trustees.

Below: Governor Whitcomb's statue on Monument Circle, Indianapolis, Indiana.

James Whitcomb

TWICE ELECTED GOVERNOR OF INDIANA AND UNITED STATES SENATOR FROM THE SAME STATE.

"We do have very clear records of the gift of the Whitcomb library which was left to DePauw University in the Governor's Will. He stipulated that the books should not be allowed out of the Library, and this rule is probably the reason why so many books survived - as many as 3,000 of the original 4,000 or so. The books are now in an enclosed area in the main library."

In his last Will and Testament (p.19) in Item 1, he states that he bequeaths to his brother David "one Scholarship which I own in the Indiana Asbury University. . ." Since his brother David was already 55 years old at the time of the writing of the Will, the scholarship must have been terminated.

Although no relation, James Whitcomb Riley, noted Hoosier poet, was a namesake of Governor Whitcomb's. "The baby had been born Sunday morning, October 7, 1849, and a week later christened James Whitcomb Riley in response to the father's admiration for Governor James Whitcomb of Indiana.[1] The father was Reuben A. Riley, an attorney in Greenfield. Mrs. Riley was Elizabeth Marine of Dutch ancestry, and it was believed that her son received his talent for poetry from his mother.[2] On April 22, 1949, The Daily Clintonian states: "James Whitcomb Riley, the noted Hoosier poet, is a namesake of Governor Whitcomb. Whitcomb and the elder Riley were friends of many years' standing when Riley's son was born and named for the Governor."

Of the 1200 acre farm in Vermillion County near Clinton, The Daily Clintonian states in the same issue as above:

"High on a bluff five miles southwest of Clinton overlooking acres of Vermillion County countryside stands one of Clinton's most illustrious links with the past--the Governors House--former home of Governors James Whitcomb and Claude Matthews who will be honored Monday in a ceremony connected with the Hoosier Century of Governors' celebration.

"Built in 1840 the house is a collector's item in peg construction and with furniture to delight the heart of an antique fan still retains its earliest charm."

Martha Ann Whitcomb, the Governor's daughter, inherited the farm and lived there after her marriage to Claude Matthews, who also became a Governor of Indiana. The house remained in the family until about 1946 when it was sold by a daughter, Mrs. Helen Matthews Krekler.

JAMES WHITCOMB, LAST WILL AND TESTAMENT

I, James Whitcomb of Indianapolis, Indiana, being of sound mind, though weak in body, do hereby make this as my last Will and Testament viz:

Item First: I hereby give and bequeath unto my beloved brother David Whitcomb of Shelby County, Indiana, all debts and demands owing in which have accrued from him to me, also all the shares which I own in the Cincinnati Fire Insurance Company, heretofore transferred by him to me; also one Scholarship which I own in the Indiana Asbury University; also five hundred volumes from my library to be selected at his own pleasure; also my gold watch and chain; also two hundred dollars in cash.

Second: I give and bequeath unto my beloved sisters Susannah, Lydia, and Sarah, and to my beloved brother Asa twelve hundred dollars each.

Third: I also give and bequeath unto the surviving heirs of my late brother Simon, by him lawfully begotten, One thousand dollars collectively, and to their mother two hundred dollars.

Fourth: I also give and bequeath unto the surviving daughter of my late beloved sister Joanna One thousand dollars; and to her father Otis Brown One hundred and fifty dollars.

Fifth: I give and bequeath unto my dearly beloved daughter Martha Ann Renick Whitcomb the last wedding suit, the pocket Bible and the family Bible, all the jewelry, and all the plate of my late beloved wife, her mother; also all my jewelry and plate except as herein is excepted, and I request my beloved sister-in-law, Margaret Seymour, to divide the residue of the clothing of my beloved wife, among her relatives as momentos, not forgetting my beloved sister-in-law Magdalen Whitcomb, and reserving to herself such and so many of said articles of clothing as she may desire in her own discretion.

Sixth: It is my will and desire, and I hereby give and bequeath unto my said beloved daughter, all rents yet due, and owing on the farm which she inherits from her mother, as well as the distributive portion of the personal property yet due from the estate of the late William Renick, of Pickaway County, Ohio, in right of her mother, my late beloved wife, subject to the settlement and ending wish and of all demands against the former husband of my said wife and against any firm or company of which he was a partner. And it is my desire that my beloved brother-in-law Renick R. Seymour may be the guardian of my said beloved daughter, until she is of age to choose one herself, and I hereby make my said daughter my residuary legatee, and give and bequeath unto her all and singular my estate, property, money, stocks, goods, and effects, and real estate, not herein bequeathed to others, subject to payment of my just debts and liabilities, and to the payment of my funeral expenses, expenses of my last sickness, and all other necessary expense growing out of the settlement and management of my estate after my decease.

Seventh: I hereby give and bequeath unto the Indiana Asbury University, all the residue of the books of my miscellaneous library not herein already bequeathed, on the condition that after they are received, not one of them shall ever be taken from within the walls of the University, wherever that may be, but that the same shall be safely kept therein, subject to reference, or to perusal only within said walls, and subject to such other regulations only as to the faculty thereof may prescribe, provided that such University may sell or dispose of not exceeding 200 volumes thereof, for its own benefit.

Eighth: I give and bequeath to my beloved brother David all my scrap books, letters, manuscripts and correspondence, with full discretion to destroy such thereof as he may think proper.

Ninth: I hereby give full discretion to my executors to sell and dispose of all my other personal property not herein specifically devised, including my Law Library and to invest for the benefit of the respective legatees to whom the same is bequeathed all legacies made to a minor or minors, and the same to reinvest from time to time in their discretion; and also to invest and reinvest from time to time all sums of money, debts, and shares in action and stock belonging to me for the best advantage of my said estate and the legatees thereto entitled.

I hereby constitute and appoint my beloved brother David Whitcomb and my esteemed friend Calvin Fletcher, Esq. of Indianapolis, Indiana, my Execution of this my last Will and Testament. In witness whereof I hereto subscribe my name and affix my Seal this 18th day of September, 1852.

(Signed) Jas. Whitcomb (Seal)

The foregoing is this day read by, published, signed, sealed, and acknowledged by the said devisor James Whitcomb as his Last Will and Testament in our presence, he calling upon us to witness the same, the words "Lydia" on the first page, and "the books of" and "Law" on the 3rd page, "belonging to me" on the last page hereof being first inserted.

Be it remembered that on the 20th day of October, A.D. 1852, personally came before the undersigned Clerk of the Marion Court of Common Pleas of Marion County aforesaid, David Whitcomb, who has had in his custody the Last Will and Testament of James Whitcomb, late of the County aforesaid deceased, and now produces said Will and Testament before me for probate. And thereupon personally came before me Oliver H. Smith of lawful age, a competent witness and first being solemnly affirmed, upon his solemn affirmation, says that the subscribing witnesses to said last Will and Testament, now marked by him "A" with his name written across the mark, are neither of them residents of the State of Indiana, and are out of the State of Indiana, as he is informed and verily believes; said witness further says that he is well acquainted with the hand-writing of the testator, James Whitcomb, and that the signature to said last Will and Testament, as well as the body of the will, is in the hand-writing of said testator, said witness further says that said testator, was at the time of making said last Will and Testament, of full age to devise property, of sound mind and memory, and under no coercion nor restraint, as said witness is informed and believes, and further said witness says not.

(Signed) O. W. Smith

(State Seal) In witness whereof I, William Stewart, Clerk of the Marion County Court of Common Pleas of Marion County, hereunto set my hand and affix the seal of said Court this 20th day of October,A.D. 1852.

43. DAVID WHITCOMB,[7] (John,[6] Asa,[5] Nathaniel,[4] James,[3] Robert,[2] John[1]) b. on November 1, 1797, Rochester, Vermont, the fifth of JOHN and LYDIA (PARMENTER) WHITCOMB; d. on May 17, 1866, near Shelbyville, Indiana; m. to 1) MARY MILLER, who died soon afterwards; 2) on December 10, 1834, to MAGDELENE FRANCES WELTON of Cincinnati; b. October 21, 1806, Harding County, Virginia; d. September 26, 1875, Warden County, Ohio.

Children: WHITCOMB

59. Welton Morris,[8] b. March 28, 1837, Westchester, Butler Co., Ohio.
60. James Leander,[8] b. April 22, 1841, Dayton, Ohio.
61. Harry Howard,,[8] b. July 11, 1844, Columbus, Ohio.
Caroline Cussett,[8] b. August 31, 1848; d. January 23, 1865.

DAVID WHITCOMB, one of the pioneer Methodist ministers of Indiana, was a man of fine native ability and success in his work. He went back to Ohio where he had lived when his father moved the family to Ohio in 1806, settling first in Chillicothe.

> "He became a member of the Ohio Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church October 4, 1826. When he was Presiding Elder he was stationed at Portsmouth, Ohio, which was the principal charge, and he was the strong man of his district, having great force of character and an impressive personality. He had a wonderful memory, and it is said he could repeat almost any chapter in the Bible when given the opening verse. . . Bishop Foster wrote in 1897 concerning Rev. David Whitcomb as follows: 'When I entered the ministry, he was esteemed as one of the most noble distinguished members of the Ohio Conference. . . He was a preacher of rare excellence and power; his visits were always hailed by the church and ministers with great delight. . .'."[1]

Chadwick's History of Shelby County, Indiana, 1909, describes him as follows: "Old-timers will recall Rev. David Whitcomb, who became widely known as a minister of the Gospel of unusual force and ability. He followed this worthy calling for many years in Ohio during the second quarter of the last century, but failing health finally led him to abandon the pulpit."

David Whitcomb returned to Indiana to live on a farm near Shelbyville. During the years that he lived in Shelby County, he preached frequently and enjoyed an extensive acquaintance throughout Eastern Indiana. When his brother, Governor James Whitcomb, died in 1852, David was named as an heir, as well as the executor of the estate. David died in 1866; his wife Magdalene, in 1875. Both are buried in Forest Hill Cemetery, Shelbyville.

44. SUSANNAH WHITCOMB,[7] (John,[6] Asa,[5] Nathaniel,[4] James,[3] Robert,[2] John[1]), b. _____ Rochester, Vermont, the sixth child of JOHN and LYDIA (PARMENTER) WHITCOMB; d. [after 1852]* m. ?.

*Although named as an heir by her brother, James, in his will (see p. 19), no trace has been found of Susannah at this writing.

45. SARAH (SALLY) WHITCOMB,[7] (John,[6] Asa,[5] Nathaniel,[4] James,[3] Robert,[2] John[1]), b. November 27, 1799, Rochester, Vermont, the seventh child of JOHN and LYDIA (PARMENTER) WHITCOMB; d. April 22, 1874, Cass County, Indiana; m. on September 23, 1819 by D. Hayden, M.B.* in Hamilton County, Ohio, to JAMES PATTERSON, b. May 8, 1796, in Montgomery County, Ohio, [1860 Federal Census lists Allegheny Co., Pa.] of Irish parentage.

Children: PATTERSON

62. James Edgar,[8] b. August 18, 1830, Lafayette, Indiana.
63. Susan,[8] b. 1835, Tippecanoe County, Indiana.
64. Simon E.,[8] b. 1837, Tippecanoe County.

[Reportedly, 3 other children but so far no record found.]

SARAH (WHITCOMB) PATTERSON migrated from Vermont to Ohio in 1806 with her father's family. It is not known when she moved to Tippecanoe County, Indiana, but it was probably about the same time that her brother Asa brought his family sometime between 1820 and 1830. "Sally" and her husband, James Patterson, lived on a farm in Tippecanoe County until 1851 when they moved to Cass County near Logansport.[1] James Patterson died on September 18, 1864 and Sarah, ten years later. Both are buried in Clymers Cemetery in Clinton Township, Cass County, Indiana.

46. SIMON WHITCOMB,[7] (John,[6] Asa,[5] Nathaniel,[4] James,[3] Robert,[2] John,[1]) b. June 7, 1810, Hamilton County, Ohio, the eighth child of JOHN and LYDIA (PARMENTER) WHITCOMB; d. December 15, 1846, Lafayette, Indiana; m. on February 19, 1835 to Eliza Wolfe, b. August 30, 1814.

Children: WHITCOMB (born in Lafayette, Indiana.)

65. Lydia Jane,[8] b. June 7, 1837;d. January 27, 1903.

66. James Holton, b. January 12, 1840.

Ann Amelia,[8] b. 1843; d. 1847

Jerusha Gertrude,[8] b. December 16, 1844; m. Orrin Stoddard.

SIMON WHITCOMB, like his brother James, was a good musician, playing the violin. He held some minor political offices in Lafayette, being a man of talent, energy and ability.[1] He died at the age of 36 and his third child, Ann Amelia, died the following year. In 1852 Simon's surviving heirs received $1,000 collectively and his widow received $200 from the estate of Simon's brother, Governor James Whitcomb. (See Will, p. 19.) The 1860 Federal Census shows James H. (age 20) and Gerusha G. (age 15) Whitcomb living in the home of William Rock, Battle Ground, Tippecanoe Township, indicating that their mother died sometime between 1852 and 1860. Prior to settling in Lafayette in 1835, Simon had lived in Cincinatti and Chillicothe, Ohio, and in Clinton, Indiana.

47. LYDIA HAYDEN WHITCOMB,[7] (John,[6] Asa,[5] Nathaniel,[4] James,[3] Robert,[2] John[1]), b. December 24, 1812, Hamilton County, Ohio, one of a second set of twins born to JOHN and LYDIA (PARMENTER) WHITCOMB; d. on October 8, 1851, Union Township, Tippecanoe County, Indiana; m. on May 4, 1831, in Randolph Twp. [later became Union Twp.] to JAMES GRAHAM TAYLOR, b. June 17, 1804, in Virginia, son of WILLIAM and FLORENCE (GRAHAM) TAYlor; d. November 23, 1863, Taylor's Station, near Lafayette, Ind.

Children: TAYLOR (All born Union Twp., near Lafayette, Indiana).

67. William,[8] b. 1832.
68. Eliza Jane,[8] b. January 1, 1834.
69. Addison,[8] b. 1836

71. James Whitcomb,[8] b. October 31, 1842.
72. Flora,[8] b. 1847.
73. Sylvester A.,[8] b. 1849; d. 1932.

LYDIA (WHITCOMB) and JAMES G. TAYLOR lived south of Lafayette, Indiana, on a farm valued at $11,000, according to the 1850 Federal Census. It is presumed that Lydia's mother either was living with or visiting her daughter when the mother, Lydia (Parmenter) Whitcomb, died in 1841. (See p. 8).

James Taylor's parents, William (1784-1839) and Florence (Graham) Taylor came from Virginia in 1828 and settled in Tippecanoe County, Randolph Township, where he erected a double cabin of logs in which they lived until he could build a brick house,[1] which was finished in 1834. This house (see next page, lower left), located about six miles southwest of Lafayette, is in excellent condition today. It is to the west about one-half mile of the small community called Taylor Station, located on Road 150 West. In about 1853 two of William Taylor's sons, John and Sylvester, erected a grain elevator on the Louisville & Nashville Railroad near their father's farm, and this became Taylor's Station. In 1860 Sylvester built a brick home, also in excellent conditon and presently occupied, just across the road and a few hundred feet south of the elevator.

88. Rebecca Ellen,[9] b. April 4, 1873.

LYDIA ANN (WHITCOMB) and ISAAC GALBREATH lived in Clinton County near Hillisburg, Indiana, where his occupation was that of farming. Isaac died at the age of 48 and is buried in the Paris Cemetery, one-half mile north of Boyleston. After his death, Lydia continued to live on the farm. The 1900 Federal Census record shows her son William living with her, and her nephew Charles Louck was there, presumably working on the farm that summer. Later, Lydia lived with her daughter "Ella" Fisher and family in Kokomo until she died in 1908 at the age of 77; she is buried at Crown Point Cemetery, Kokomo.

Averill Fisher of Kokomo provided the following record of the Galbreath family that he found written on a piece of paper in a Bible left to him by his mother, Rebecca "Ella" Fisher, written shortly before she died in 1956.

> "Harriett Glenchoe was a native of Edinburg, Scotland. Harriett West was a daughter of Harriett Glenchoe; Harriett Jennie was a daughter of Harriett West, first to come to America. Elisebeth Galbreath was a daughter of Harriett Jennie and she married David Galbreath and their son was Isaac Galbreath who married Lydia A. Whitcomb."

Rearranged, the line of descendants would be as follows: Harriett Glenchoe; Harriett West; Harriett Jennie; Elisebeth [Elsebeth] m. David Galbreath; Isaac Galbreath m. Lydia Ann Whitcomb.

O Thou a hope that cheers my breast
That my fair mary Mary gone to rest
Ere while her dying lips could move
The prize the Lord with pardoning love
2 Her blooming cheeks her sparkling eyes
Are withered with the rose that dies
The arms that once imbraced me warm'd
Lies moldering now in the cold grave
Why should I thus shed a tear
I soon shall be done laboring here
If faithful then I'll glory gain
And shout with Mary and my Jane

John Whitcomb

O Thus pillowed head upon his drum
Beneath the moonlights softest beam
When knight and skilled the battles
They dug his grave in Mexico

O Drummer boy to Mexico
1 When battles rage each war like bred
And carnage loud the trumpet blew
Gem Edwin left his native land
A drummer boy for Mexico
2 His mother when his lips she prissed
And bade her noble boy adieu
With ringing hands and aching breast
Beheld him march to Mexico
3 But he that knew no infant fear
His knapsack on his shoulder threw
And cries ater mother dry those tears
Till I return from Mexico
4 He went and ere the battle gun
Beheld our arms the prize to due
The flash of death the murderous gun
Has laid him low in Mexico
5 O comrades comrades Edwin cried
And speedily beamed his eyes of blue
Go tell my mother Edwin dies
A soldiers death in Mexico

JOHN and MARTHA (STINSON) WHITCOMB lived on a farm in Michigan Twp., Clinton County, Indiana, and attended the Baptist Church southwest of Hillisburg. From a small journal of accounts it appears that, besides farming, John traveled through parts of central and southern Indiana, possibly trading livestock. Some of the cities and towns listed are Indianapolis, Clarksville, Ladoga, Greencastle, Lizton, Edwardsport, Terre Haute, and Charlestown with expenses for each including river bridge tolls. Among the financial listings was written the following recipe:

"turpentine alcohol and olive oil equal parts enough to fill one pint ad to that one and a half oz cantharides."

It does not state what the recipe is for. Cantharides is a crushed beetle dried powder that may be used either as a skin poultice or a diuretic.

*Family records show 1880 as Orville's birthdate, but military records gave 1878. It is possible he misstated his age in order to enlist in 1899 without parental consent.

Another home-remedy recipe given was the following:

> 1 pt. turpentine, ¼ pt. nitric acid; Castile soap the size of a hen egg; mix well together and apply hot.

This may have been to bathe a leg ulcer, which John developed in his later years.

Some of the entries in John's journal show that he had dealings with John Barnett and James Barnett as follows:

John Barnett dr. to 4½ days work at 2.50 per day	10.50
James Barnett dr. to 1 day with team	3.25
and ½ day for boys	4.48
one beef skin	18.00
	25.73

One listing of expenses is as follows:

Individual	2.20
goggles	.35
gloves	.05
whip	.75
silk	.10
hors shooing	.75
Danville	.25
gun	15.00
clothing	13.00
	32.35

And on another list appears--Burben .10; cigars .30. Most of the entries have the day of the month but only two have the year--"Borrowed in Bank $200, 7 day of May 1854" and "June the 21 1867 paid by cash $20.00."

John and Martha began their marriage in a log cabin with the bedroom, living room and kitchen all in one large room. The story is told that at night when John would blow out the lamp, he would lose his sense of direction and would be unable to find the bed unless Martha called out to him. One night she pretended to be asleep and that time he stumbled all around the room, getting behind the cookstove and knocking down utensils hung on the wall before Martha finally called out to him. In the late 1800's they built a frame house, where successive generations of the family lived.

John died on January 22, 1902 from a malignant sarcoma caused from an infected tooth; Martha died of tuberculosis on April 17, 1905; both are buried in Whiteman Cemetery, Michigantown.

John was also somewhat of a poet as two poems were written in the accounts journal mentioned above. (See following pages.)

DOVE SONG

One day while in a lonesome grove
Sat on my head a little dove
For her lost mate began to coo
Whitch made me think of mi mate too.

O little dove yor not alone
For with you I'm constrained to mourn
For once like you I had a mate
But now like you must mourn my fate.

Consumption seized her lung severe
And preyed upon her for one long year.
But death did come at close of day
And he did my poor Mary slay.

But death grim death did not stop here
I had a babe to me most dear
He like a vulture came again
And took from me my little Jane.

But bless the lord the word is given
That babes are born the heirs of heaven
Then ceace my heart to mourn for Jane
Since my small loss is her great gain.

I have a hope that cheers my brest
That my poor Mary, Mary's gone to rest
For while her dying lips could move
She praised the lord with pardening love.

Her blooming cheeks, her sparkling eyes
Are withered with the rose that dies
The arms that once imbraced me round
Lies moldering now in the cold ground.

Why should I thus shed a tear
I soon shall be done laboring here
If faithful then I'd glory gain
And should [be] with Mary and my Jane.

Above: Recent snapshots of the farmhouse built by John M. and Martha Whitcomb in the late 1800s.

After Martha's death, son "Ace" and his family lived there, and it was later occupied in succession by three of Ace's children and families--Eva Curts, Thurman Whitcomb, and Mildred Bishop.

Preceding page: Copy of the deed for farm land transferred from Asa and Hannah Whitcomb to their son John in 1859, five years after his marriage to Martha Stinson. This property is located in Michigan Township about one and one-half miles east of State Road #29 on County Road 100 N on the south side of the road. It remained in the family until 1941.

100. James Shelby,[9] b. June 27, 1868.

* This is the birth date given at the County courthouse; date on the tombstone in Whiteman Cemetery gives February 14, 1837 as date of birth.

JAMES LEONARD and BARBARA (BARNETT) WHITCOMB lived on a farm within a mile radius of both his father Asa and his brother John about a mile east of what is now State Road 29 on County Road 100 N. His three sons, John, Aaron, and Shelby also had farms in the same vicinity. Leonard was the legal guardian for his two nephews, Charles and Asa Black, sons of his youngest sister Helen, who died at age 25.

54. REBECCA JANE WHITCOMB,[8] (Asa,[7] John,[6] Asa,[5] Nathaniel,[4] James,[3] Robert,[2] John[1]), b. Apr. 15, 1838, Tippecanoe Co., Indiana, fifth child of ASA and HANNAH (SMITH) WHITCOMB; m. ca. 1855 to Samuel Lowden, b. ca. 1831 in Ohio.

Children: LOWDEN (all born in Clinton Co., Indiana, near Michigantown.)

Hannah L.,[9] b. 1856.
Barbara E.,[9] b. 1859.
William,[9] b. 1861

REBECCA JANE (WHITCOMB) and SAMUEL LOWDEN lived on a farm near Michigantown, Indiana, and Samuel also worked in a sawmill. His tombstone shows that he was a member of Co. C, 10th Ind. Infantry in the Civil War. Both he and Rebecca are buried in Whiteman Cemetery, Michigantown.

55. SARAH ELEANOR WHITCOMB,[8] b. March 18, 1841, Indiana, (not certain whether in Tippecanoe or in Clinton County), the seventh child of ASA and HANNAH (SMITH) WHITCOMB; m. ca. 1860 to John J. Armstrong.

Children: ARMSTRONG (all b. Clinton Co; dates are from the 1880 Federal Census Records and may vary a year or so)

James,[9] b. 1865
Florence,[9] b. 1868
Asa,[9] b. 1871
John,[9] b. 1874.

SARAH ELEANOR (WHITCOMB) ARMSTRONG, called Ellie, was living on a farm and was a widow according to the 1880 Federal Census records. Her son Clinton was living with her at that time. Marriage records at Frankfort, Indiana, show Clinton Armstrong, Boyleston, age 27, son of John J. Armstrong and Sarah Whitcomb married on November 11, 1887 at Boyleston to Bessie Pennington, also of Boyleston, age 21, daughter of Sebastian and Lydia (GRAHAM) PENNINGTON. The 1929 Whitcomb Reunion attendance record gives his wife's name as Martha, possibly a second wife. The same record also shows that John and Lottie Armstrong were in attendance in 1929. They lived in Frankfort; their son Orville, lived in Boswell, Indiana. James Armstrong lived in Kokomo and his daughter Sarah was married to Dale Grove.

56. MARY WHITCOMB,[8] (Asa,[7] John,[6] Asa,[5] Nathaniel,[4] James,[3] Robert,[2] John[1]), b. March 3, 1843, Indiana, (either in Tippecanoe or Clinton County,) the eighth child of ASA and HANNAH (SMITH) WHITCOMB; m. IRVING LAYTON.

57. ALICE MARVINE WHITCOMB,[8] (Asa,[7] John,[6] Asa,[5] Nathaniel,[4] James,[3] Robert,[2] John[1]) b. March 14, 1850, Clinton County, Indiana, near Michigantown, the ninth child of ASA and HANNAH (SMITH) WHITCOMB; d. on November 16, 1875; m. ca. 1866 to Uriah (Uri) Black, Jr., son of Uriah and Mary A. BLACK.

Children: BLACK

101. Carrie,[9] b. 1867.
102. Flora,[9] b. 1868.
103. Asa,[9] b. 1869.
104. Charles,[9] b. 1870.

ALICE M. (WHITCOMB) BLACK died at the age of 25 of pneumonia. Her two daughters lived with the grandmother, Hannah Whitcomb, and the two sons were under the guardianship of their uncle, James Leonard Whitcomb. The 1880 Federal Census shows Charles living there but shows Asa Black, aged 9, adopted, living with his Aunt Elizabeth Barnett. Since the census counting took place during the summer, it may have been that Asa was visiting in the home of his aunt. The 1880 Census also lists both boys as 9 years old; but according to the 1870 Census, Asa would have been 10.

58. MARTHA ANN RENICK WHITCOMB,[8](James,[7] John,[6] Asa,[5] Nathaniel,[4] James,[3] Robert,[2] John[1]), b. July 1, 1847, Indianapolis, Indiana, the only child of JAMES and MARTHA (RENICK) WHITCOMB; d. 1912, Clinton, Indiana m. on January 1, 1868, to Claude Matthews, b. 1845; d. 1898.

Children: MATTHEWS

Mary,[9] m. Senator Cortez Ewing of Greenburg.
Helen,[9] m. Albert Krekler
Renick Seymour,[9]

MARTHA ANN WHITCOMB's mother died when the baby was but 16 days old and her father, Governor James Whitcomb, agreed that the mother's family should raise the child. She lived with her mother's sister, Margaret Seymour, in Ross County, Ohio, and met the man she was to marry when they were 14 and 16 years old. Claude Matthews was born in Bath County, Kentucky, in 1845,on a plantation in the Blue Grass country, where his father raised thoroughbred horses, cattle, and mules. In 1861, hearing a rumor that the Confederate Army intended to commandeer the horses and mules, Claude's father decided to send his young son, driving the animals, to Ross County, Ohio, where the family had friends. While Claude was in Ohio, he met Martha Whitcomb and the two felt they were meant to be together.

> "After repeated letters from his father commanding him to come home, Claude started out on horseback with Martha riding by his side as far as she dared. Immediately after his departure Martha began a campaign with her relatives to be allowed to attend a private school for girls at Danville, Kentucky, in the fall; and after many family conferences she was given their approval. Claude's father consented to Claude's request to attend Center College at Danville, and it was inevitable that the two would be married in 1868 soon after his graduation."[1]

Martha had inherited the 1200 acres in Vermillion County, Indiana, from her father and Claude added 800 acres to it. Here at "Hazel Bluff," one of the finest farms in the state, their three children were born and reared. The farm remained in the family until about 1961.

"In 1876 Matthews was elected to the state legislature from Vermillion County. He became very popular because of his efforts for the farmers and was elected Secretary of State in 1890 and Governor of Indiana in 1892"[2] on the Democratic ticket.

Martha (Whitcomb) Matthews had the distinction of being both a Governor's daughter and a Governor's wife. Claude Matthews died in 1898 and Martha, in 1912 at Hazel Bluff.

HARRY HOWARD WHITCOMB was in the furniture manufacturing business. He received the A.B. degree from Indiana Asbury University (now DePauw), Greencastle, on July 1, 1869, and the A.M. degree in 1872.

> "After leaving college he studied law in the office of David & Wright, practiced his profession for a few years and then entered the internal revenue service as gauger. He retained this position for eleven years, and during that time built up a large and lucrative insurance and loan business, being the pioneer in that line at Shelbyville. After Cleveland's election in 1884, Mr. Whitcomb resigned his position in the revenue service and engaged in manufacturing as a member of the Conrey-Birely Table Company, now known as Davis-Birely Table Company. . . .Personally Mr. Whitcomb is a gentleman of quiet demeanor and even temper, denoting habitual self-possession. He is literary in his tastes, has read much and makes excellent company for those who enjoy his intimacy. Few men are so well informed as to current events of importance or concerning all those things which go to make up a liberal education."[1]

Harry H. Whitcomb was a member of the Masonic Lodge, Baldwin Commandery, and Knights Templar. He attended the Methodist Church. He died on February 12, 1912; his wife Martha died 20 years later, December 19, 1932; both are buried at Forest Hill Cemetery, Shelbyville.

70. HIRAM TAYLOR,[8] b. March 14, 1838, Taylor Station, Tippecanoe County, Indiana, the fourth child of JAMES G. and LYDIA H. (WHITCOMB) TAYLOR; d. April 25, 1905; m. 1868 to LUCINDA MARIA HILL, b. May 28, 1840, Butler County, Ohio; d. October 28, 1932, Chalmers, White Co., Indiana.

Children: TAYLOR (all born at Badger, White Co., Indiana)

117. Aletha G.,[9] b. May 21, 1869.

Anna,[9] d. 1967; m. Fred Rowe; ch. Claude, Helen.

Metta,[9] m., no ch.; bur. Cemetery of Old Soldiers Home, Lafayette.

HIRAM TAYLOR was a graduate of Asbury University (now DePauw) at Greencastle, Indiana. He studied law in the office of his uncle, Governor James Whitcomb, at Indianapolis for two years. He served in the Civil War, first as a Pvt., secretary to Governor Manson, and was then promoted to Orderly Sergeant. Honorably discharged, he was a member of the GAR organization. He was married after the Civil War in 1868; buried at Hebron Cemetery, Tippecanoe County.

71 JAMES WHITCOMB TAYLOR,[8] b. October 31, 1842, Taylor Station, Tippecanoe County, Indiana, the sixth child of JAMES G. and LYDIA H. (WHITCOMB) TAYLOR; d. August 19, 1926, Tippecanoe Co.; m. on March 15, 1866, to 1) MARY ELLEN HAINES, b. November 19, 1846; d. May 18, 1873.

Children: TAYLOR (All born in Tippecanoe County, Indiana)

Errie,[9] b. January 1, 1867; d. 1867.

Miley R.,[9] b. January 4, 1868; d. March 17, 1873; 5 yrs. old.

Frank,[9] b. May 22, 1870.

118. Cora Ellen,[9] b. May 9, 1873.

Married on February 24, 1874, Battle Ground, Indiana, to NAOMI M. HENDERSON, b. March 28, 1854; d. March 1, 1926.

Children: TAYLOR

119. Clarence J.,[9] b. February 4, 1877.

120. Lawrence C.,[9] b. March 17, 1884.

May Olive,[9] b. August 24, 1882; d. June 15, 1904.

Maude E.,[9] b. December 31, 1878; January 8, 1883.

JAMES W. TAYLOR was a farmer and lived in Tippecanoe County all of his life. His first wife died just 9 days after their fourth child, Cora Ellen, was born and he remarried the following year. He served as president of the Whitcomb-Taylor Reunion from 1923 to 1926, passing away in August before the Reunion was held on September 4, at which time his son Clarence was elected president for the coming year. He is buried in Hebron Cemetery (also called Mt. Zion) in Wabash Township.

72. FLORA TAYLOR,[8] b. 1847, Union Township, Tippecanoe Co., Indiana, the seventh child of James G. and LYDIA H. (WHITCOMB) TAYLOR; m. 1) ? Rosen, 2) ? Mullen.

Children: ROSEN

Olive,[9] dau. Della Rogers, California.

[Other descendants are Harold Schaible, Ft. Myers, Florida; and his sisters, Isabelle Paust, Richmond, Indiana, and Marguerite Sheridan, Minneapolis, Minnesota. Unable to get complete details.]

73. SYLVESTER A. TAYLOR,[8] b. September 11, 1849, Wea Plains, Tippecanoe County, Indiana, the eighth child of JAMES G. and LYDIA H. (WHITCOMB) TAYLOR; d. 1932, Lafayette; m. on October 16, 1894 to ALTA I. HENDERSON, b. February 27, 1864; d. October 11, 1920.

SYLVESTER "VES" TAYLOR lived in Lafayette, and the Whitcomb-Taylor Reunion records show that in 1923 and 1924 he was the vice-president when his brother James W. was president. The records also show that his wife Lydia was among those present, indicating that after the death of Alta in 1920, he remarried. Some members of the family believe that he was married three times, and there is some evidence of this although no record of such a marriage could be found. When he married Alta Henderson in 1894, he was 45 years old, making it unlikely that this was a first marriage. Also, birth records show a Mary Eleanor Taylor, b. August 31, 1873; d. on September 5, 1882, as his daughter, making him 24 years old at the time of her birth. Therefore, it is logical that there was an earlier marriage. His namesake was James Leonard Sylvester Taylor Whitcomb, son of John E. and Mattie, and who was known as Taylor Whitcomb of Boyleston, Indiana. (See p. 132.)

81. HARRIETT ANTHA GALBREATH,[9] b. November 6, 1850, Clinton County, Indiana, the first child of ISAAC and LYDIA (WHITCOMB) GALBREATH; d. on November 10, 1934, East Chicago; m. on December 1, 1866 to THOMAS J. HARBAUGH.

Children: HARBAUGH (born in Clinton Co., near Scircleville.)

140. James West,[10] b. August 18, 1868.
Martha Alice,[10] b. 1870; d. 1883.
Eva,[10] b. 1873; died in infancy.
141. Hanna Elizabeth,[10] b. June 5, 1874.
142. Eliza Estella,[10] b. January 19, 1878
143. Harriett May (Mayme),[10] b. July 30, 1882.

HARRIETT ANTHA (GALBREATH) and THOMAS J. HARBAUGH lived near Hillisburg, Indiana, where he made a living by farming. His tombstone in Baker Cemetery near Scircleville indicates that he was a Civil War Veteran. In the early 1900's Harriett, son Jimmy and daughter Stella moved to East Chicago, Indiana, where "Jimmy" worked in the building trades. Harriett is remembered for her exquisite needlework. She died on November 10, 1934, just 4 days after her 84th birthday; she is buried at Hammond, Indiana.

82. JOHN W. GALBREATH,[9] b. in June, 1854, Clinton County, Indiana, the second child of ISAAC and LYDIA (WHITCOMB) GALBREATH; d. December 9, 1915, Kokomo; m. in 1881 or '82 to Emma S. ? ; b. August 27, 1857; d. January 27, 1945, Kokomo.

Children: GALBREATH (born in Tipton Co., Kokomo, Indiana)

Roxy May,[10] b. October, 1882; d. July 17, 1912; m. ? McReynolds; no children.

Cliffa Dael,[10] b. September, 1884; d. January 1, 1906; unmarried.

Glenn E.,[10] b. February 21, 1891; d. September 17, 1912; unmarried.

JOHN W. and EMMA GALBREATH lived in Kokomo, where John was a real estate dealer. Sorrow came into their lives when their second daughter, Cliffa, died on January 1, 1906, at the age of 22. She was put in a glass-covered coffin; and since the weather made digging a grave practically impossible, the coffin was placed temporarily in a mausoleum. However, the grief-stricken mother went to the cemetery to visit the dead daughter so frequently, asking the cemetery attendants to unlock the door to the mausoleum, that for the sake of her mental state and because the attendants were complaining of the nuisance, the body was interred as soon as the spring weather permitted it. Six years later in 1912 both the daughter, Roxy May, and the son, Glenn, died within two months of each other. John's death in 1915 was caused from hemorrhaging following surgery on the nose.

Cliffa Dael was called by both her first and second name, but there is some question as to the correct spelling of the second name. Since it was pronounced like "doll," the 1900 Federal Census shows her middle name as Dorothy, the census taker evidently assuming that Doll was the nickname for Dorothy. However, relatives believe it was spelled Dael; others think it might have been Dale. The death record in Kokomo gives only the initial "D." Glenn E. Galbreath was a member of the Elks Lodge. All are buried at the Crown Point Cemetery, Kokomo.

83. ELIZA JANE GALBREATH,[9] b. May 4, 1857, Clinton Co., Indiana, the fourth child of ISAAC and LYDIA ANN (WHITCOMB) GALBREATH; d. 1933, Frankfort; m. in 1879 to SAMUEL J. LOUCK, b. June 26, 1855, Clinton County; d. 1921.

Children: LOUCK (born in Clinton Co., Indiana)

144. Charles Henry,[10] b. April 17, 1880.
145. Anna Mae,[10] b. March 28, 1882;
146. Clyde Earl,[10] b. January 17, 1887.
147. James Glenn,[10] b. September 12, 1895.
148. Ruby Ellen,[10] b. November 30, 1897.

JANE (GALBREATH) and SAMUEL J. LOUCK lived in Frankfort, Indiana. After he quit farming, Samuel was a laborer and a teamster. They attended the First Christian Church and Samuel was a member of the Woodmen of the World Lodge. Eliza Jane preferred to be called "Jennie" and on one son's marriage application he lists his mother as Jennie E. Louck. After her husband's death in 1921, Jane's daughter Ruby and family lived with her until Jane's death in 1933. Both Samuel and Jane are buried at Bunnell Cemetery, Frankfort.

84. ASA DAVID GALBREATH,[9] b. September 13, 1860, Clinton Co., Indiana, the third child of ISAAC and LYDIA ANN (WHITCOMB) GALBREATH; d. December 7, 1940, Kokomo; m. on February 6, 1886, at Frankfort to MATTIE WOOD, b. July 16, 1869, Falmouth, Kentucky, daughter of GEORGE WOOD; d. on January 6, 1933.

Children: GALBREATH

149. Jewel Mable,[10] b. March 6, 1888, Colorado.
150. Chester Omer,[10] b. July 31, 1890, Scircleville, Indiana.
151. Birdie Pauline,[10] b. December 2, 1900, Kempton.

ASA and MATTIE (WOOD) GALBREATH went to Kansas soon after their marriage to prove up a land claim. After the required time, they sold out and moved to Colorado near Trinidad, where the first child, Jewell Mable, was born in a sod house. This homestead, too, was sold and they returned to Clinton County before the birth of the second child in 1890. They eventually settled on a farm near Knightstown and were members of the Christian Church. Asa was a member of the Odd Fellows Lodge at Scircleville. Both are buried at the Knightstown Cemetery.

85. JAMES LEONARD GALBREATH,[9] b. April 11, 1863, Clinton Co., Indiana, the sixth child of ISAAC and LYDIA ANN (WHITCOMB) GALBREATH; d. May 18, 1920, Indianapolis; m. on October 20, 1897, to HATTIE LULU DASEKE, b. October 29, 1875, Francesville, Indiana; d. February 28, 1957, Indianapolis; daughter of AUGUSTAVE and EMILY DASEKE, who were born in Germany.

Children: GALBREATH

152. Ray Leonard,[10] b. October 2, 1898, Francesville, Ind.

153. Roy Wilbur,[10] b. August 23, 1899, Francesville.

154. Emma Jeannette,[10] b. December 24, 1909, Indianapolis.

JAMES LEONARD GALBREATH was a brickmason and contractor. The 1900 Federal Census shows that he was living in Francesville, Pulaski County, so it was between 1900 and 1909 before daughter Jeannette was born that the family moved to Indianapolis. He was a member of the Knights of Pythias. Both he and Hattie, who survived him by 37 years are buried at Crown Hill Cemetery, Indianapolis.

157. Charles Lincoln,[10] b. December 16, 1901, Monroe Center, Illinois.
158. Arthur Elmor,[10] b. May 1, 1907, San Francisco, California.

FLORENCE (GALBREATH) and LINCOLN MARSTON lived in Illinois until after their third son Charles was born. They went to Ames, Iowa, where a cousin of Lincoln's, Dr. Charles Marston, lived. They settled on a farm, but discouraged by drought and crop failure and having a brother, Dr. Charles Benjamin Marston, in California, the family moved again, arriving in San Francisco in 1903 before the Earthquake of 1906. Lincoln was an elementary school teacher. The family attended the Presbyterian Church. Lincoln died on November 26, 1947, surviving his wife by 18 years; both are buried in Mt. Tamalpais Cemetery, San Rafael, California.

86. WILLIAM SHERMAN GALBREATH,[9] b. April, 1866, Clinton Co., Indiana, the sixth child of ISAAC and LYDIA (WHITCOMB) GALBREATH; d. in 1917; bur. Crown Point Cemetery, Kokomo; m. Laura ? .

Children: none.

WILLIAM SHERMAN GALBREATH was a brickmason. The 1900 Federal Census listed him as living on the farm with his mother in Johnson Township, Clinton County. He later lived in East Chicago with his Aunt Harriett Harbaugh and worked in the construction business with cousin, James Harbaugh. His niece, Jeannette Hauser, recalls that he was nicknamed "Billy Bean" because he was tall and slender like a bean pole.

161. James Averill,[10] b. February 7, 1905.
162. Francis Arol,[10] b. December 7, 1907.

REBECCA ELLEN (GALBREATH) and JAMES ARTHUR FISHER lived most of their married life in Kokomo. "Ella" and Arthur met when he was a "hired hand" working on her father's farm, and Arthur continued to make a living at farming for a short time. They moved to Kokomo where he became a machinist. Ella was a member of the Christian Church; Arthur was a member of the Red-men's Lodge. They had celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary and were nearing the 60th when Ella died in 1956 and Arthur, five months later. Both are buried in Crown Point Cemetery, Kokomo.

THE REUNION

The Whitcomb-Taylor Reunion was an annual event that many families attended regularly. Records were not kept then, but one of the first reunions held was that of Lydia Whitcomb Taylor's family in about 1906 as evidenced by the photo on page 87. The next record is that of the Brown-Patterson Reunion, descendants of Sarah "Sally" Whitcomb Patterson, (sister of Lydia above,) which was held at Logansport, Indiana, on August 23, 1913, and at which James Taylor and John E. Whitcomb were present. (See p. 85.)

In 1922 the reunion name was Brown-Patterson-Whitcomb and was held in Columbian Park, Lafayette. (See opposite page.) At this time officers were elected and a secretary's record begun with Rachel Whitcomb as secretary.

In 1923 the name, according to Secretary Rachel Whitcomb's record, was the Taylor Reunion and officers elected for the coming year were James Taylor, president; Sylvester Taylor, vice president; Rachel Whitcomb, secretary-treasurer; and Ruby G. Heaton, vice secretary-treasurer.

In 1924 the Reunion was held at the T.P.A. Park in Frankfort on the last Sunday in August with 125 persons present. The name had now been changed to WHITCOMB-TAYLOR Reunion. At the business session those present voted to return to Columbian Park, Lafayette, for the next year and the Reunion was held there for the next forty years until 1965 when it was moved to the northwest part of Indiana at Wanatah in LaPorte County. Officers in 1924 were re-elected for the coming year except that Ruby G. Heaton became secretary-treasurer, an office she held for thirty-six years, and Rachel Whitcomb was the vice secretary-treasurer.

In 1926 the Reunion was held on September 4 and remained on the Sunday before Labor Day until 1969 when the Reunion was discontinued because of low attendance. About that time the families of Fred Whitcomb's descendants began having their reunion on the last Sunday in June in Pells Park, Paxton, Illinois. At present that seems to be the only annual Whitcomb Reunion.

In 1928 the group voted to purchase a copy of the Whitcomb Family In America, by Charlotte Whitcomb. The book was in charge of the secretary and was available to any family that wanted to borrow it.* In 1964 an ancestral record book was purchased but no entries were ever made in it.

* This book is now in the care of David Whitcomb, Trinidad, Colorado.

 Secretarial records and ancestral record book are in the care of Margaret Whitcomb Baird, Huntington Beach, California.

WILLIAM ASA WHITCOMB, known as "Ace," was a farmer and lived all of his life in Clinton County near Hillisburg and Michigantown, Indiana, except for the few years spent in Texas and Kansas when he took his wife and son by covered wagon to Texas in 1883. They homesteaded in Jack Co. where the second child was born. Four years later he moved the family to Pratt County, Kansas, at the time that the U.S. Government was removing all Indians to a reservation in Oklahoma. "Ace" and family left Kansas in about 1890 because of crop failures. His wife and four children returned to Indiana by train while he, driving the cattle and horses, arrived much later. In 1905 Asa bought the farm that had belonged to his parents and the family lived there until about 1917.

Ace was a member of the Redmen's Lodge and the family attended the Church of God near Hillisburg. Both he and Rachel loved music and he played the violin. Asa was just past 50 years old at the time of his death caused from gall stones. A newspaper clipping from the Frankfort Morning Times stated that an autopsy was performed at his home by four local physicians, who had tried to persuade him to go to Chicago to undergo surgery since that was the nearest place that surgery could be performed at that time; but he had refused. The autopsy showed not only the presence of gall stones, but also that the liver had been infiltrated with fine stones or "gravel."

Rachel (Thurman) Whitcomb was an accomplished seamstress and supplemented the family income with her work, even tailoring the wedding suit of a young man in the community. After the death of her husband, she remained on the farm for a few years; but as the sons grew up and left for other types of employment, Rachel and the three youngest daughters moved to Michigantown. In 1924 she and Mildred moved to Scircleville, where Mildred was the postmistress, and Rachel helped her with the two grandchildren and occasionally at the post office. Rachel was living at Frankfort at the time of her death in 1934. Both she and Asa are buried at Whiteman Cemetery, Michigantown.

ISAAC MASON WHITCOMB, known as Mason or "Mace," was a farmer in Johnson Township near Hillisburg, Indiana, during the time that he and his wife Lillie were rearing their children. He later went to Frankfort, where he was a barber. At the time of his death in 1935 he had been living in Indianapolis, where most of his grown children had gone to live. His widow Lillie lived to be past 90 years old.

176. Paul,[10]]

MARIETTA (WHITCOMB) and JOHN Q.A. AULT lived on a farm located just east of State Highway 29 on Road 100 N. Although both John and "Etta" were from large families, they had only three children and no grandchildren. The eldest son Howard was unmarried and died at age 28 of fatty degeneration of the heart; twin Ralph died in infancy. The remaining twin, Paul, lived to age 74 but married when middle aged and had no children.

John Ault had five sisters, Catherine, Mandy, Christina, Rosy, and Nancy, and a twin brother Andrew James. John was six years old when his parents, James Ault (b. 1830, Marion Co.; d. 1910) and Mary Billhaymer (b. 1832, Virginia) moved from Hamilton to Clinton County. Etta died following gallbladder surgery in 1928; John died in 1946 following eye surgery; both are buried in Whiteman Cemetery, Michigantown.

177. Ralph Whitcomb,[10] b. January, 1894.

178. Ruth Whitcomb,[10] b. July 31, 1907.

EMMA FLORENCE (WHITCOMB) and WILLIAM WOOD lived in Princeton, Indiana, except for a few years at Francisco, a few miles east of Princeton. William started the W.L.S. Wood Insurance Agency, and at his death at age 55 in 1920 his son Ralph bought the agency. Emma continued to live in Princeton except for the time that she and her daughter Ruth lived in Indianapolis while Ruth attended Indiana State Teachers' College. She went to Scircleville in about 1928 to live with her sister-in-law and niece, Mrs. Rachel Whitcomb and Mrs. Mildred Morris. Emma died of a cerebral hemorrhage and William died of pneumonia. Both are buried at North Manchester, Indiana. 96. ORVILLE FRANCIS WHITCOMB,[9] (John,[8] Asa,[7] John,[6] Asa,[5] Nathaniel,[4] James,[3] Robert,[2] John[1]), b. August 11, 1880, Clinton Co., Indiana, near Michigantown, the eleventh child of JOHN M. and MARTHA (STINSON) WHITCOMB; d. November 21, 1935, U.S. Veterans Hospital, Kerrville, Texas.

ORVILLE FRANCIS WHITCOMB enlisted in the Spanish-American War on September 16, 1899, when he was 21 years old. He was of fair complexion, blue eyes, 5'5" tall and weighed 120 lbs., according to his military record, when inducted in the U.S. Army at Frankfort, Indiana. He was a farmer living with his parents at that time. He was assigned to Co. I., 38th Regiment of the U.S. Volunteer Infantry and sent to Jefferson Barracks, Missouri. After his basic training he was sent to Rosario, Philippine Islands. Orville was with General Schwain's expedition through So. Luzon from 8 January to 27 February 1900, engaging in battles at Talisay, Luta, Batangas, Dumangas, Barotao Nuevo, and Bangbangbung during these two months, his "service honest and faithful" according to the certification of the company commander.

During his entire tour of duty, Orville was confined to sick quarters frequently for a few days at a time; and since there is no record of his being wounded, it is presumed that he suffered attacks of asthma with which he was afflicted and/or of malaria, commonly suffered by a large portion of the men serving in the "Philippine Insurrection." He was detached from service at Cabatnan, P.I., from 6 December 1900 to 15 January 1901 and on special duty at an outpost at Anilao from 9 to 20 April 1901.

After nearly two years of service, Pvt. Orville Francis Whitcomb was mustered out of the U.S. Voluntary Infantry on June 30, 1901, at the Presidio in San Francisco. Returning to civilian life,Orville lived on the farm; but in a few years World War I had begun, and he enlisted on 12 February 1918 and was a Corporal with the 5th Balloon Co., Air Service, until his discharge on 15 July 1919. Some time after his discharge he went to Texas because of ill health and died in 1935 of tuberculosis. He had married a nurse only a few years before he died.

208. Helen Theresa,[10] b. September 27, 1899.

FRANK S. WHITCOMB lived in Shelbyville, Indiana, all of his life, there according to The Daily Democrat he was a "prominent manufacturer and leader in civic affairs, a self-made man who arose from small beginnings to a place of prominence locally and in furniture manufacturing circles of the country." Frank was vice-president of the Davis-Birely Table Company, a position he had held for the last 15 years prior to his death in 1926 at 60 years of age. He had been with the company for forty years, working his way through every position until he became vice-president in charge of sales. He was a leader in the furniture trade, having served for three years on the Board of Directors of the Grand Rapids Furniture Market Association and had been re-elected in July, 1926.

> "The career of Mr. Whitcomb was one of the most interesting to which Shelbyville people can point with pride as the efforts of a self-made character in every particular," stated The Daily Democrat. "The schooling that he received was meagre since his assistance was needed to help with the affairs of the family. Despite these seeming impediments, Mr. Whitcomb put his ambitions to work and how he succeeded is best shown by the prominent place he held at his death."[1]

Frank Whitcomb had been a member of the Board of Directors for the Shelbyville Chautauqua since that organization was founded and took an active part in the annual program. Other civic activities included being a charter member of the Rotary Club and fourth degree member of the Knights of Columbus. He was also a member of the Columbia Club, Indianapolis and the Blue River Country Club. Upon his marriage he became a member of St. Joseph Catholic Church and was active in church affairs.

130. RUBY GRACE HEATON,[10] b. January 28, 1887, Clinton Co., Indiana, the first child of WILLIAM FRANCIS and SARAH MARGARET (BARNETT) HEATON; d. January 9, 1961; unmarried.

RUBY GRACE HEATON lived with her parents in Michigantown and continued to live there after they both had died. She taught school for 48 years, first at Michigantown, beginning in 1907 and then in Frankfort until 1960. Ruby attended Marion College and received her degree from Indiana State Teachers College, Terre Haute, in 1915. She was secretary of the Whitcomb-Taylor Reunion for 38 years, from 1922 to 1960. Buried in Whiteman Cemetery, Michigantown.

131. ESSIE ELMA HEATON,[10] b. April 5, 1889, Michigantown, Indiana, the second child of WILLIAM F. and SARAH M. (BARNETT) HEATON; d. in 1968, Termopolis, Wyoming; m. on April 11, 1918, in the Congregational Church, Buffalo, Wyoming, to CHARLES AUGUST PLOESSER, b. September 18, 1885, Hackensack, New Jersey, son of German-born parents, John and Katherine (KEIL) PLOESSER.

Children: PLOESSER

234. Margaret Francis,[11] b. June 5, 1920, Buffalo, Wyoming.
235. Charles William,[11] b. December 3, 1921, Michigantown, Indiana.

ESSIE ELMA (HEATON) PLOESSER graduated from nurses' training in 1912 at Ravenswood Hospital, Chicago. She took private nursing cases, as well as working at the hospital until her marriage in 1918. Charles Ploesser went from New Jersey to Wyoming with his brother John in 1907. He worked at various jobs in Cheyenne and in 1915 homesteaded on the Powder River near Sussex. He also worked for the 41 Ranch roundup and the H F Bar Dude Ranch, where he was a cook and also conducted pack trips. In 1915 the owner of the dude ranch, Mr. Horton went to Chicago to engage nurses to help on the ranch. Three nurses, Essie Heaton and two friends, Lucy Rook and Ruby Day, accepted Mr. Horton's offer and went to his ranch in Wyoming. Essie and Charles met there and were later married.

In 1918 Charles Ploesser filed an additional homestead on Indian Creek in Johnson County thirty miles south and east of Buffalo, Wyoming. He was a sheep rancher, and the family lived there until he sold the ranch and moved to Buffalo in 1948. In the early years of ranching they were isolated for months at a time, a trip to the county seat taking half a day to travel and the nearest neighbor being twenty miles away. When the children attended school, it was necessary to go to Buffalo and stay there during the school term. The only trip that Essie made to her home in Indiana was in 1921, and her son, Charles William, was born in Michigantown at the home of her parents. When Essie announced to her mother that the baby was arriving, Sarah had been kneading dough in the kitchen, and with traces of flour and dough still on her hands she rushed to the bedroom to deliver the baby.

Charles and Essie Ploesser had a wide circle of friends and were well known and respected in Johnson County, Wyoming. Charles had been christened in the Lutheran faith and Essie was a member of the Baptist Church; however, because of the remoteness of their ranch, they did not attend church services.

JAMES GLEN LOUCK served in the U.S. Army during World War I. While in a combat zone in France his company had lost its cook; and when an officer asked the men if there was anyone who could cook, Glen looked down at the mud, then up at the officer and answered, "I can!" He promptly became mess sergeant and remained with the Army of Occupation until his discharge. Glen returned to Indianapolis and entered the building trades, being a stonemason and contractor. He was a member of the Episcopal Church.

148. RUBY ELLEN LOUCK,[10] b. November 30, 1895, Clinton County, Indiana, the fifth child of SAMUEL J. and ELIZA JANE (GALBREATH) LOUCK; m. on October 26, 1916, to CHARLES NORMAN, son of Porter Field and Mary (TUDOR) NORMAN. (b. April 10, 1892; d. 1961).

255. Fred Richard,[11] b. January 27, 1918, San Francisco, California.

JOEL BENJAMIN MARSTON, after graduating from Cogswell High School, San Francisco, worked in lumber camps before joining the S.F. City Police Department in about 1928. During his years as a patrolman, he drove patrol cars, worked in the detective division, and was a motorcycle officer; but his favorite duty was being a mounted police officer, and he passed up promotions to higher rank in order to continue the mounted duty. Joel became quite attached to the horses that were assigned to him; and when one was struck by a car in Golden Gate Park and had to be destroyed, he was so grief-stricken that he took other duty for a long time before returning to mounted duty. After his retirement in February, 1953, he had time for the outdoor activities he enjoyed so much. An expert marksman, he spent his time hunting, as well as fishing and some gold mining. Unfortunately, after only four years of retirement, he died in 1957 from cancer. His cremains were placed at the foot of his father's grave in Mt. Tamalpais Cemetery, San Rafael. His son Fred remembers his father as "the best of men and I am proud to be his son."

WARREN GALBREATH MARSTON, M.D., grew up in San Francisco, and was nearly seven years old at the time of the Earthquake of 1906, which he remembered and related the horrors of the incident. After graduating from Lowell High School in 1919, he attended the University of California. He was admitted to the St. Louis University Medical School in 1928-29 and took his internship residency at St. Mary's Hospital, St. Louis. He was commissioned a 1st Lieutenant in the U.S. Army Medical Corps on February 1, 1929, and was stationed at a camp in Michigan. Minnie E. Thomas went to Gary, Indiana, in 1920, where her brother, Harry B. Thomas, lived. (He was a graduate of Valparaiso University and later became an M.D.) Minnie took nurses' training at St. Mary's Mercy Hospital in Gary, graduating in 1923. She went to St. Louis in 1925 to work at the R.R. Hospital. Soon thereafter she and Warren met while he was working in the hospital pharmacy to help defray his expenses as a medical student at the University. They were married in 1927, and Minnie continued her nursing career at two of the largest hospitals in St. Louis for about 15 years.

Dr. Warren Marston was chief surgeon at St. Mary's Hospital and had been Senior Instructor of Surgery, St. Louis University Medical School for 25 years. He was a fellow of the International College of Surgeons and a member of the AMA. Minnie Marston lives in St. Louis near her daughter and family. Warren is buried in Hiram Memorial Cemetery, Creve Coeur, Missouri.

Prior to going to New York, he had worked as a telegrapher in Bloomington, Illinois, Lafayette, Indiana, and Chicago, Illinois, for the Lake Erie & Western Railroad. Although he died in New York City, his funeral was held in Frankfort, Indiana, and burial was at Whiteman Cemetery, Michigantown.

166. MABEL GERTRUDE WHITCOMB,[10] (William,[9] John,[8] Asa,[7] John,[6] Asa,[5] Nathaniel,[4] James,[3] Robert,[2] John[1]) b. February 8, 1884, Jack County, Texas, the second child of WILLIAM ASA and RACHEL (THURMAN) WHITCOMB; d. on November 19, 1976, Elmhurst, Illinois; m. on June 13, 1910, at the Christian Church, Evansville, Indiana, by the Rev. W. E. Sweeney to ROBERT BRUCE WALLACE, b. October 2, 1888, second child of David Thompson and Kathryn (DOBBINS) WALLACE.

Children: None.

MABEL (WHITCOMB) WALLACE took secretarial training in Indianapolis and worked there for a while before going to Chicago. An article that appeared in the Evansville, Indiana, newspaper telling of the couple's marriage is as follows: SON OF ENGINEERING COMPANY'S HEAD WEDS PAPA'S STENOGRAPHER

"Upon the receipt of a forgiving telegram from his father, R. B. Wallace, son of D. T. Wallace, president of the Central Engineering Company, of Chicago, today made public the fact that he and Miss Mabel Whitcomb, for four years chief stenographer and bookkeeper in the Chicago office, were married here Monday night.

"Miss Whitcomb was brought here when the Central Engineering Company was given the contract for constructing the plant for the Evansville Public Service Company, on account of her thorough knowledge of the work. A few weeks ago young Wallace was also sent to Evansville to look after some of the details of the work.

"'We had been sweethearts for a long time,' said Wallace today, 'but had not intended to get married before fall. Last Sunday evening we were talking about our wedding plans and I decided there was no use waiting longer. We were married Monday night by Rev. Sweeney at the Christian Church.'

"Mr. and Mrs. Wallace will live at the home of Mrs. Harry E. Woods, at 12 Adams Street. The young couple this morning received the following telegram from the groom's father: 'Regret the haste; but God bless you both, Dad.'"

Bruce and Mabel (she later changed the spelling to Mabelle) lived in Chicago for more than 40 years until his retirement from the engineering firm. They moved to Valparaiso, Indiana, in 1951 and Bruce worked for the Continental Diamond Company until his second retirement in 1958. Although the couple had no children, they were loved by numerous nieces and nephews who visited them frequently.

In 1974, at the urging of twin nieces, Gay and Gail Whitcomb, Mabelle being past 90 years old, entered the Porter County Fair Senior Queen Contest and was runner-up, losing to a "younger woman."

You're Not Getting Older, You're Getting Better Department — When 90-Year-old Mabelle Wallace, runner-up in Wednesday's Senior Queen contest, was asked by the judges what her fondest memory was, the spry "young" lady laughed and replied that "when you have lived as long as I have, you have too many to tell about. I've got so many I wouldn't know where to begin.

In 1975 Bruce and Mabelle Wallace celebrated their 65th Wedding Anniversary at Valparaiso and then moved to Elmhurst, Illinois, to live with her sister, Mrs. Chas. Harris. In September, 1976, Mabelle suffered a cerebral hemorrhage and died on November 19 at the age of 92 years 9 months. Cremains were placed in the Masonic Cemetery at Acacia Park near Elmhurst.

June 10

277. John Thurman,[11] b. June 25, 1928, Michigan Twp.
278. David A.,[11] b. August 25, 1931, Michigan Twp.

THURMAN and BLANCHE (MANN) WHITCOMB were married in Seattle, Washington, with the Rev. J. M. Wilson of the Presbyterian Church officiating. They lived in Seattle where Thurman was a streetcar conductor from 1910 until 1915. They returned to Indiana with son Gordon, living near Boyleston on a farm owned by Blanche's father, David Mann, and their second child was born there. In about two years they moved to Michigantown, and Thurman began selling Rawleigh household and livestock products. In 1918, during the 'Flu Epidemic, their third child was born. Having contracted the 'flu at birth, it was thought for several weeks that the baby would not live but she survived. About 1920 the family moved to the "old home place," a farm about 3½ miles southeast of Michigantown that had been Thurman's great grandfather's (Asa, p. 10), his grandfather's (John, p. 33), and father's ("Ace", p.67). In addition to farming, Thurman continued to sell Rawleigh products in the farming communities of Clinton County.

The three children attended grade school at Boyleston, and in December, 1923, Gordon became ill with scarlet fever. Since Blanche was pregnant with the fourth child, it was decided that Thurman should take care of the sick boy and that Blanche would remain apart from the family, doing the outside chores of milking cows and feeding livestock. Unfortunately, she had already been exposed and she, too, came down with the fever; and on Christmas Day when her temperature was 105°, the doctor who came every day to see her, doubted she would live. However, she recovered and the fourth child Delores was born in June, 1924, without ill effects. During the seige of illness, Blanche's widowed mother, Rebecca Mann, had lived with the family; and after eight weeks of quarantine, all were happy and relieved when it was ended!

In about 1927 Thurman went to work for a cousin, "Jimmy" Harbaugh (see p. 98), who had a construction firm in East Chicago, but this ended with the beginning of the "Depression." The family remained on the farm near Michigantown until 1934 and then moved to Porter County near Valparaiso. Thurman was employed in a steel foundry in East Chicago (Indiana Harbor), as well as working their small farm. He had been retired eight years at the time of his death as a result of a heart attack in 1961. Thurman and Blanche attended the Washington Twp. Evangelical Church, in Porter County. Thurman never met a stranger, loved to talk to everyone he met, and had a wonderful sense of humor. He and Blanche had such a wide circle of friends, acquaintances, and relatives who came to pay their respects at his funeral that the director of the mortuary stated that it was the largest funeral they had ever handled. Blanche had been confined to a convalescent home for eight years prior to her death on January 16, 1978. Both are buried in Graceland Cemetery, Valparaiso.

169. HERBERT RILEY WHITCOMB,[10] (William,[9] John,[8] Asa,[7] John,[6] Asa,[5] Nathaniel,[4] James,[3] Robert,[2] John[1]), b. June 24, 1894, near Hillisburg, Indiana, sixth child of WILLIAM ASA and RACHEL (THURMAN) WHITCOMB; d. June 9, 1972, San Diego, California; m. on October 4, 1923, at City Hall, Waukegan, Illinois, by Harry Mason, Justice of Peace, to LILLIAN ELIZABETH O'EFFLING, b. June 6, 1901, Volo, Illinois, second child of John J. and Eva (WEINGART) O'EFFLING. (They were married again later by Catholic Priest, Rev. Francisco T. Azbe, Waukegan.)

Children: none.

HERBERT R. WHITCOMB had lived and worked in Seattle for about seven years when he enlisted in the U.S. Navy on March 17, 1918, taking basic training at the Naval Training Station in Seattle, Washington. He was assigned to the USS Saterley, Destroyer #194, on the East Coast with the rank of Fireman 2/C. He later served aboard the USS West Corum, a supply ship on both the West and East Coasts, as Chief Water Tender, and aboard the USS Memphis during the Nicaragua Campaign, receiving the Second Nicaraguan Medal. In 1921 Herbert was aboard the USS Sciota, stationed in the Panama Canal Zone, making trips to South America - Ecuador and Peru. He retired in 1938 after 20 years' service but was recalled to active duty at the beginning of World War II, assigned to the USS St. Mihiel, an Army Transport, in Alaskan waters. He was transferred to the USS Columbia, serving in the Asiatic Pacific Theatre in the Solomon Islands with the rank of Warrant Machinist. He was transferred from the USS Columbia to the Naval Hospital, Rores, New Hebrides Islands, and from there to Naval Hospital #400, Auckland, New Zealand, and finally to San Diego. After discharge from the hospital, Herbert was assigned to duty at the Naval Repair Base, San Diego, with the rank of Chief Warrant Machinist and was Assistant Shop Superintendent, Boiler Shop, when he retired the second time at the close of World War II.

Herbert and Lillian Whitcomb made their home in San Diego, California; he died at the Naval Hospital there on June 9, 1972. Lillian died eight months later on February 17, 1973 in McHenry, Illinois, at the home of a sister. Both are entombed at Cypress View Mausoleum, San Diego.

170. MAURICE ASA WHITCOMB,[10] (William,[9] John,[8] Asa,[7] John,[6] Asa,[5] Nathaniel,[4] James,[3] Robert,[2] John[1]), b. March 30, 1896, near Hillisburg, Indiana, seventh child of WILLIAM ASA and RACHEL (THURMAN) WHITCOMB; d. on September 9, 1964, San Diego, California; m. on April 10, 1920, at the Clinton County Court House, Frankfort, to 1) EDITH ADA HALE, b. November 21, 1896, third child of James H. and Ada I. (WILLIAMS) HALE; divorce granted in September, 1924, Frankfort, Indiana; m. on August 1, 1926, Huntington Park, California, by the Rev. Paul Sampson, to 2) LUCILLE HENRY, b. February 10, 1903, Walnut Ridge, Arkansas, second child of W. O. and Bertha (BECHTOL) HENRY.

Children: none.

MAURICE ASA WHITCOMB enlisted on August 25, 1917, in the U.S. Army, World War I. He participated in battles in the Garardmar Sector and the Meuse Argonne in France, attaining the rank of Sergeant, Co. B, 52nd Infantry. Discharged on July 26, 1919, by reason of demobilization. After his divorce in 1924, suffering the ill effects of mustard gas poisoning from the War, Maurice (known as Jack) decided to try a more moderate climate than that in Indiana and went to Southern California. He worked with a cousin, Brice Thurman, in Wright's Furniture Store in Huntington Park. Lucille Henry was working next door at the Peacock Inn when they met and were married. In 1940 Jack worked for a land developer in the desert community of 29 Palms in San Bernardino County. When World War II began, he went to San Diego and worked at Ryan Aeronautical Company until his retirement, living in San Diego about 25 years until his death in 1964. Maurice is buried at Ft. Rosecrans National Cemetery, San Diego. He was a member of the Ocean Beach American Legion, Post #433. His widow Lucille lives at Anaheim, California.

Children: BISHOP

282. Damaris Janet,[11] b. October 5, 1930, Scircleville, Indiana.
283. Sue Carol,[11] b. April 17, 1933, Scircleville.
284. Linda Lou,[11] b. July 17, 1935, Scircleville.
285. Patricia Ann,[11] b. April 1, 1938, near Michigantown, Ind.

MILDRED (WHITCOMB) BISHOP was appointed postmistress of the Scircleville Post Office in December, 1924, and served in that capacity until 1936, when the family moved to the farm (see p. 38) in Michigan Township, Indiana. In 1942 Grant, Mildred, and family moved to Lafayette, where Grant worked at the Fairfield Manufacturing Company. In 1943 he began working in the Lafayette Post Office, transferring to Burlingame, California, in 1957. While living in Lafayette, Mildred taught sewing classes at the Singer Co. store and in Burlingame she did tailoring and alterations. Grant retired in 1966 after 23 years with the Postal Department, and he and Mildred moved to Pine Grove, California, near Jackson in Amador County. They are members of the First Baptist Church in Lafayette, where three daughters, Damaris, Linda, and Patricia, were married. Grant joined the Masonic Lodge at Scircleville in 1931; and Mildred, the Eastern Star in 1932. They are active in the Jackson Masonic and Eastern Star Lodges, having been Worthy Patron and Worthy Matron, respectively.

173. DAMARIS WHITCOMB,[10] (William,[9] John,[8] Asa,[7] John,[6] Asa,[5] Nathaniel,[4] James,[3] Robert,[2] John[1]), b. November 6, 1903, near Hillisburg, Indiana, the tenth child of WILLIAM ASA and RACHEL (THURMAN) WHITCOMB; m. on September 28, 1929, at 7614 N. Greenview Avenue, Chicago, Illinois, by the Rev. Charles T. Hull of St. Paul Episcopal Church, Rogers Park, Chicago, to DAVID HUNTINGTON BRADFORD, b. April 26, 1905, Ottawa, Illinois, the sixth child of Samuel Baldwin and Evelyn (HOFFMAN) BRADFORD.

Chilcren: none.

DAMARIS (WHITCOMB) BRADFORD went to Chicago in 1922, after graduating from Michigantown High School. She took a secretarial course at Pierson's Business School and worked for several years in an office. David worked as a sales representative and office manager for 27 years at Union Wadding Co. and was expediter in The Stevens Steel Company at the time of his retirement in 1969. David and Damaris Bradford were members of the Dickens Fellowship of London, Chicago Branch, for 40 years. David owned a special collection of Dickens' works, was consulted by the editors of World Book Encyclopedia on this topic, and given credit for this service in the 1973 edition of World Book. After his retirement, the couple moved to San Diego, California, where David died on September 11, 1971; cremains placed in Ottawa Cemetery at Ottawa, Illinois.

174. ROY ELZIE WHITCOMB,[10] (Isaac,[9] John,[8] Asa,[7] John,[6] Asa,[5] Nathaniel,[4] James,[3] Robert,[2] John[1]), b. 286. Mary Allene,[11] b. March 24, 1922, Burkburnette, Texas.

ROY and BESSIE (HODGES) WHITCOMB first lived in Frankfort, where Roy was a brakeman on the Cloverleaf Railroad, but a constant battle with ill health and tuberculosis forced him to seek work in a warmer climate. They went to Texas where he worked in the oil fields for a time, but the work was too rigorous. They went to Colorado and then to California, but returned to Indiana where they lived in or near Indianapolis. During the time they were in the Indianapolis area, Bessie cared for foster children placed in her home by the Marion County Welfare Department. Many of these children, now grown, still keep in touch with her. The couple attended the Pentecostal Church, Indianapolis. Later they lived in Brown County near Nashville and were living in Florida at the time of Roy's death in 1967, a few months before their 60th wedding anniversary.

Bessie, who preferred to be called "Lennie", wrote annually to the secretary of the Whitcomb Reunion when she and Roy were no longer able to attend. Lennie is living at the Masonic Home in Franklin, Indiana, and was 90 years old on October 8, 1978.

Old fashioned as leather boot

By JIM LEMAN
of the Times staff

BOYLESTON — Taylor Whitcomb owns a car, but he despises it. His house has an oil furnace, but he doesn't like it, and he uses a deep freeze only because he won it.

Walk into the Whitcomb home here, and it might as well be 1900, except for the electric table radio, an electric wall clock, a few bare light bulbs suspended from the ceiling and an old television.

In the back room, where a Sears Roebuck coal stove fills one corner, is an old rocking chair. In it is Taylor Whitcomb, 86, with his jacket and cap still on. A brown ceramic spitoon is on the floor next to his chair, with evidence of recent use.

The radio sits on a heavy wooden table against the east wall. A glass-chimney oil lamp is mounted near a door next to the stove. The coal bucket and poker are next to the stove.

"Well, we're old fashioned, that's for sure," commented Blanche Whitcomb, 85, as she rocks in another chair between the stove and table.

"I'm as old-fashioned as a leather boot," Whitcomb said, as Blanche, whom he refers to as "my little lady," chuckles.

"We have an oil furnace, but we're not very proud of it," Whitcomb's wife of 66 years said. "It's warm enough. We haven't suffered with cold, but it's not like a coal stove."

"I have a hell of a time getting used to it," said Whitcomb. "You can't back up to 'em to get warm like you can with that coal stove."

Whitcomb, demonstrating a sharp memory for places, names and dates, traced his family's origin back to Brown and Tippecanoe counties. His great grandfather, Asa Whitcomb, ran a distillery in Lafayette about 1844 before moving to Clinton County. He said he enjoys an occasional snort of the stuff himself. He doesn't chew much while indoors, but instead, "I smoke like the devil."

Inside the Whitcomb home, built during the platting of Boyleston in 1875, the rooms are dimly lit, sunrays cutting through curtained windows the only light. There are almost a dozen rocking chairs in the three downstairs rooms. The couple has lived here since 1946, and the outside needs some repair and paint.

Distinctly missing from the decor is any sign of plumbing. Out back, weather-worn and leaning to one side, is the outhouse. Why live this way, without furnishings most people consider necessities?

"There isn't anything to it," Whitcomb said. "I've got furnishings in here that's as solid as a meetin' house. I don't like this new fangled stuff.

"I'd rather live in my time. I think we've lived the best time here on earth. The rest of it's going to be confusion."

"Things are real different now," agrees his wife.

Mabel Ellen Briggs, 1919

MABEL ELLEN BRIGGS was graduated from Purdue University, Lafayette, with honors in 1919. An article in the yearbook Debris in 1919 states:

"Making Purdue in three years requires that one be a hard-working, conscientious student. Such is Mabel. She did not only 'get by' in three years but is distinguished by being a member of both honorary societies for girls. School work alone, however, did not occupy her entire attention, and she was very much interested in all University activities. Although she was as busy as could be, she always had time to be pleasant and courteous, and to lend a helping hand to a friend in need."

Before attending Purdue, Mabel had taught the elementary grades; after receiving the B.S. degree, she taught home economics in Logansport High School before her marriage in 1924.

JOHN C. and MABEL (BRIGGS) BETHKE lived in Logansport, Indiana, where he was in the retail furniture business. They maintained membership in the Lutheran Church, and Mabel was a member of the DAR (Daughters of the American Revolution). John C. died on July 31, 1955; Mabel and her son John Henry, (named for his Grandfather Bethke, a Lutheran minister born in Missouri), continued to live in Logansport in the family home on High Street until Mabel's death on September 2, 1977, at the age of 83.

376. Bruce Paul,[12] b. July 18, 1941.

377. Nancy Jean,[12] b. May 13, 1944.

GORDON PAUL WHITCOMB graduated from Michigantown High School in 1930, when finding employment was almost impossible. He worked with the State Highway Dept. building new bridges and resurfacing State Road #29 and later on various short-term jobs until he decided to "go West." He arrived in California with little more than a change of clothing and even that was stolen as he slept at a roadside campsite. He had sold the stripped down Model T Ford he had been driving en route and hitch-hiked the remainder of the way to California. When Gordon arrived in the Long Beach area in 1931, he stayed with two uncles until he found employment, going from one temporary job to another. The employment picture was no better in California than it had been in Indiana, so he started working his way back East, working for several months on a ranch near Sheridan, Wyoming, returning to Indiana in 1933, where he worked in a steel foundry in East Chicago until 1937. A work "recession" prompted him to leave Indiana again; this time he and a buddy rode motorcycles to Seattle, where Gordon sold his cycle and went on to Sitka, Alaska. At Sitka Gordon has worked as a longshoreman, a commercial fisherman owning his own fishing vessel, and a construction engineer/operator of heavy equipment. He also worked on the DEW Line in the Arctic Circle when it was constructed in the late 1940s. Gordon retired in May, 1977. He served as a member of the Burrough Assembly of Sitka for six years and was a member of the Charter Commission when the Burrough and the City combined in 1971.

Gordon and Mary Whitcomb live in a small mobile home court which they own and operate. He is a member of both the Moose and Elks Lodges and she, of the women's auxiliaries.

273. MARGARET ELIZABETH WHITCOMB,[11] (Thurman,[10] William,[9] John,[8] Asa,[7] John,[6] Asa,[5] Nathaniel,[4] James,[3] Robert,[2] John[1]), b. July 28, 1916, near Boyleston, Clinton County, Indiana, the second child of THURMAN and BLANCHE (MANN) WHITCOMB; m. on March 5, 1938, in Martinsville, Indiana, to CHARLES A. BAIRD, b. MARGARET (WHITCOMB) BAIRD received the A.B. degree at Central Normal College, Danville, Indiana, in August, 1936, and the M.S. degree in Business Education from Indiana University, Bloomington, Indiana, 1959. She began her teaching career at the age of 20 years, September, 1936, in Cadiz High School, Henry County, Indiana, having high school students near her own age and one who was a few months older than she. Margaret was assigned to teach, typewriting, shorthand, bookkeeping, business English, Latin, and girls' physical education--an unusual and difficult combination. After her marriage and subsequent divorce, Margaret taught one year at Springfield Twp. High School in LaPorte County, then went to Portage High School in Porter County in 1943, remaining there 21 years. At Portage Margaret taught only the business subjects, being appointed head of the business department in 1954. During the summers of 1944-45, she worked in East Chicago, Indiana, in a steel foundry which was engaged in producing war materiel; and during the summers from 1949-55, she was State Accountant at the Dunes Hotel, Dunes State Park, Chesterton, Indiana.

In 1965 Margaret moved to California and has taught since that time at Cerritos College, Norwalk, Los Angeles County. An active member of various professional organizations, she was a charter member of the Porter County, Indiana, chapter of Delta Kappa Gamma, an honorary women teachers' society, as well as elected to membership in 1959 to Delta Pi Epsilon, national honorary business educators fraternity. She is currently president-elect of the Alpha Omicron chapter, University of California, Los Angeles. Other memberships include International Graphoanalysis Society, California Business Education Association, American Business Communication Association, and Orange Co. California Genealogical Society. Margaret is listed in the 1976 and 1977 editions of the World's Who's Who of Women and in the 1977 World's Who's Who of Women in Education. Although she attends no particular church, she was baptized by Pastor John Anderson of the Church of God of Hillisburg, Indiana, ca. 1931. Margaret lives in Huntington Beach, Orange County, California.

424. Paula Kay,[12] b. January 12, 1953, St. Johns, Newfoundland, Canada.

GORMAN W. SMITH entered the U.S. Army on February 11, 1941, then transferred to the Army Air Corps in 1942, becoming a Senior Pilot, Class 43A in January, 1943; received a Reserve retirement in 1961 with the rank of Major.

On January 19, 1943, at 2:30 p.m. when returning from a combat mission to New Guinea in the Southwest Pacific, Gorman's B-24 bomber was shot down by the Japanese just off the Island of Soroa (north of Darwin, Australia), one of the islands of Java. Of the eleven-man crew, six were killed, and the five surviving crew members, including Gorman who was seriously wounded, swam 2½ miles to the Island. A Japanese patrol boat came to the island searching for the survivors of the crash whom the natives had hidden behind dense bushes. The crew was discovered and Gorman, being the only American with a gun, shot the six men in the Japanese patrol. Five of them were killed instantly, but Gorman had to kill the sixth one by stabbing him to death with his knife. The Javanese natives had refused to reveal the hiding place of the Americans, and one of the Japanese beheaded the Chief's 15-year-old son for refusing to tell--a sacrifice which Gorman will never forget.

Gorman flew 21 combat missions in the Southwest Pacific Theater of World War II, four of them being major engagements. He received credit for shooting down two Japanese aircraft from the waist gun position of the B-24 bomber of which he was the First Pilot. He received the following decorations: Silver Star, Flying Cross, Australian Flying Cross, Air Medal with 4 clusters, Presidential Citation, and Purple heart.

Gorman and family moved from Illinois to Lafayette, Indiana, in 1971, where he was a partner in owning and operating a retail men's clothing store. In 1977 he sold out and moved to Carlsbad, California. Gorman is a member of the Church of Christ, American Legion, Disabled Veterans, the Masonic Lodge and Commandery Shrine.

ADDENDUM

Regarding Governor James Whitcomb,[7] pp. 15-18: In the Illustrated Historical Atlas, State of Indiana, 1876, p. 167, it states: "James Whitcomb, Esq., was first Prosecuting Attorney in Hancock County, Greenfield, in 1828. Also, Governor Paris C. Dunning, who moved to Monroe County, Indiana, from North Carolina, studied law in Governor Whitcomb's law office and was admitted to the bar in 1832. He was elected Lieutenant Governor in 1846 on the ticket with Governor James Whitcomb and filled out the term as Governor when Whitcomb was elected to the U.S. Senate in 1848.

ERRATA

Correction of some errors that were not found until after the pages were printed are as follows:

on page 10 - Nancy[8] date of birth is 1845.

on pages 29 and 39 - "Helen Black" should be Alice Black.

on page 99 - "Abrogast" should be Arbogast.

on page 108 - "Marson" should be Marston.

on page 112 - #263 date of birth should be 1926, not 1936.

on page 146 - #224 Olive Richardson, date of marriage should be 1912.

on page 241 - #448 Betty Lynne Roth, the "9)" in front of Wayne Dennis Wall should be 2).

- #449 Karen Lynette Roth, the date "June 27, 1948" is the date of birth of James McIntire, not the marriage date.

Other typographical errors are in common words that the reader will readily know the word intended.
